BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — One black was killed and two others wounded today at Southern University's main campus during a brief student takeover of the administration building, a spokesman for the State Board of Education said.

Law enforcement officers, shooting tear gas grenades, routed the students from the building.

The occupiers filed out shortly before noon, their hands over their heads as they walked past a puddle of blood on the sidewalk.

It was not immediately clear who was responsible for the shootings.

Gov. Edward Edwards instructed that the nearest National Guard unit to the campus be activated and sent to the campus immediately.

He told officers to "do everything you can to prevent violence. We've got to maintain control."

The shooting apparently occurred as Edwards recommended that the state Board of Education ditch the proposed solution which ended student occupation of buildings at the Southern campus in New Orleans last week.

"It's a situation in which we are apparently unable to communicate," Edwards said.

Kissinger to leave for Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger is expected to leave for Paris at any time, perhaps today, for his climactic meeting with chief North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho.

As of this morning, the White House had said nothing about Kissinger's imminent journey though it had promised to give advance notice of his departure. But officials stuck by their predictions he would start the final round of talks with Tho before the week is out.

While Tho stopped in Moscow Wednesday on his return from Hanoi, Kissinger kept up his telephone consultations with President Nixon at nearby Camp David.

And Kissinger continued his own consultations with National Security Council aides and State Department experts. He met Wednesday for the second straight day with Under Secretary of State U. Alexis Johnson and William Sullivan, deputy assistant secretary of state for Southeast Asia.

As Kissinger kept up his work in anticipation of the round of meetings he has promised will wrap up a settlement, there were other developments indicating some of the details are near completion.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said Wednesday the United States feels it has obtained an "agreement in principle" from four nations to take part in supervising a cease-fire.

He did not list the countries, but Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland are reported to have agreed to participate, pending what Bray called "an opportunity to explore at some greater length the details and fine print" that emerges from the Kissinger-Tho talks.

The Canadian Foreign Office said, however, it has made no commitment, but diplomatic and other sources said the planning is well along for the supervisory function.

For example, it is expected the four nations will contribute a combined inspection force of 5,000 men with some of their logistic support paid for by the United States.

Other nations, including the four supervising countries, may also pay some of the cost of overseeing the cease fire, while the United States, both Vietnamese and the Viet Cong will have representatives with the inspection units.

Officials also said the nine-point tentative agreement outlined last month by both Kissinger and Hanoi calls for a ceasefire to become effective 24 hours after an agreement is signed. This virtually requires completion of the supervisory machinery in quick order, they stated.

BELFAST (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived in Northern Ireland today to try to promote a new round of peace talks. As he flew from London, gunmen killed a young Roman Catholic shopkeeper, and a suitcase bomb destroyed the telephone exchange in Armagh.

The killing of George Doherty, the 28-year-old manager of a television shop, brought to 630 the confirmed death toll in more than three years of communal violence in the province. He was killed in front of his wife by shots fired through their front door.

Heath's two days of meetings with politicians, churchmen, labor and business leaders open the final phase of preparations for a new government

A spokesman for the Police Department said two black males, apparently students, were shot in front of the administration building.

Students were jammed inside the building. A telephone call to the president's office brought comments from a girl who said as many as 2,000 students had gone to the building to "talk" to the president.

At issue she said was the continuing controversy over student demands at the two-campus school, which brought some arrests this week on charges of disrupting classes. Among the demands were requests for student control of academic affairs and the resignation of the head of both campuses.

Japanese assist stricken cutter

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Japanese freighter took the crippled Coast Guard cutter Jarvis under tow for a tiny island in Alaska's Aleutian chain today, ending a nine-hour ordeal for the powerless and flooded U.S. vessel.

Coast Guard spokesmen said the Kovo Maru No. 3 was dragging the cutter to an inlet of Sedanka Island, a few miles west of where the Jarvis, beset by what were described as "mountainous seas," rested without engines while an international force of merchant and military ships moved to the rescue through troubled north Pacific waters.

"We hope to find some shelter in the inlet where we can examine the damage and determine what more can be done," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Kovo was the first ship to reach the 378-foot Jarvis — described as the pride of the Coast Guard fleet — as it lay helpless 20 miles south of Akutan Island, unable to move or pump out water that deluged its engine room.

"The Jarvis is not yet in the clear, but definitely on her way there," the spokesman said. "It's always a good thing when you have a line between a sick ship and a healthy ship."

One other Japanese merchantman, two Russian ships and a Greek vessel continued to respond to the Jarvis SOS.

Spokesmen said flooding that inundated the cutter's engine room had been controlled, and Capt. Frederick O. Wooley reported his ship was "in no imminent danger of sinking."

There were no injuries reported among the crew, which officials placed at 170 men.

Spokesmen described the cutter's condition as "serious but stable" as it rode 25-knot winds and 12-foot swells 750 miles southwest of Anchorage in the north Pacific.

The Honolulu-based cutter lost power and ability to pump water late Wednesday when her engine room flooded.

Also answering the cutter's SOS were two Coast Guard cutters, an American fishing boat, three military HC130 search planes and a Navy P3 aircraft.

Pumping equipment was dropped to the vessel by one of the HC130s, and the spokesman said the Jarvis, equipped with an H52 helicopter, was believed to have ferried a few men to Akutan.

"It's a serious situation, but nobody's pushing the panic button," the spokesman said. "She's not foundering on the brink of extinction."

The Jarvis first ran into trouble early Wednesday when she went aground in "high seas and wind" in Dutch Harbor at Unalaska Island adjacent to Akutan.

Emergency repairs were completed, and a spokesman said Capt. Frederick O. Wooley decided to leave the Alaska fisheries patrol and return to Honolulu. Wooley is a resident of Mililani Town, Hawaii, formerly of Manassquan, N.J.

Forty miles later, the ship began to flood and power was lost.

Commissioned in August, the Jarvis is among the largest of Coast Guard vessels and is powered by a combination of two jet engines similar to those carried by B52 bombers and standard diesel engines. A dozen cutters of the same class are planned by the service, and about half of them have been launched.

Zoning law weapon in smut fight

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit is trying a new way to stop the spread of stores selling smut — zoning laws.

Frustrated by its inability to ban or close down adult bookstores on grounds that they peddle pornography, the Detroit Common Council now says smut stores must get approval from 51 per cent of property owners, businessmen and residents within 500 feet of any proposed location.

In addition to adult bookstores, the new law covers topless bars and adult theaters.

Legal attacks on porno businesses until now have been based on charges that they were obscene and hurt the city's morals. Porno peddlers said they were exercising free speech under the First Amendment and have been upheld by the courts.

Now, Common Council says such stores blight the neighborhoods in which they operate and reduce property values.

Existing smut shops would not be affected by the new ordinance.

The new approach was drafted by a task force of attorneys and city employees. It is part of a package of laws including the city zoning approval requirement.

Maureen Reilly, an assistant city attorney, said the new laws do not curtail ideas protected by the First Amendment. They do control the methods of profiting from those ideas, she added.

Sheridan V. Holzman, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, says the ordinance is "constitutionally defective and probably beyond salvation because it attempts to use zoning and licensing to restrict First Amendment rights."

Holzman contends the definitions in the ordinance are "too broad."

Man freed after serving 3 years for 'oversight'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Victor Wright, 30, who served nearly three years in jail or prison for a murder he claims he didn't commit, is free today.

Circuit Court Judge Robert Landry dismissed the case Wednesday and ordered Wright freed when police refused to turn over the names of informants who allegedly told them another man had said he murdered George Coleman in July, 1969.

Anthony Karpowitz, an attorney for the Legal Aid Society of Milwaukee, and Miss Leah Lampone, an assistant in the Legal Aid office, discovered a statement earlier this year in which they said a person who claimed he was an eyewitness to the slaying told police that someone else killed Coleman.

"Police were prepared to testify as to what informants told them, but not who said it," Dist. Atty. E. Michael McCann said.

McCann said the police were afraid that the informants, who had helped them in other cases, would be in danger if their names were revealed.

One of the district attorney's assistants, John Spindler, said it was an oversight on my part not to have found the statement and divulged it.

There was no conscious suppression of this statement on behalf of myself," he said. "The file was extremely complex."

Circuit Court Judge Gerald Boileau, who had sentenced Wright to life in prison in April, 1970 after a jury convicted him of first degree murder, granted the new trial in June.

"I am satisfied that this is one of those situations that unfortunately happen once in a while," he said.

Wright, who was first incarcerated in the case Dec. 26, 1969 after he allegedly beat an 18-year-old girl friend in Minneapolis, said he was not bitter.

"I've learned, doing time, it's better not to associate personal feelings with the problem at hand," he said.

"But," he added, "there shouldn't have been a trial at all."

Cease-fire change rejected

PARIS (AP) — A new round of secret Vietnam peace negotiations was imminent today, but North Vietnam in advance rejected any changes in the draft cease-fire agreement worked out by Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

Xuan Thuy, the chief of North Vietnam's delegation in Paris, told the weekly session of the semipublic peace talks. "We resolutely reject all the pretexts put forth by the United States and Saigon to demand modification of the substance of the agreement."

He repeated Hanoi's persistent demand that the United States "immediately sign the agreement."

The chief modification demanded by Saigon, a provision calling for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam, was repeated today by South Vietnam's representative at the session, Nguyen Xuan Phong.

U.S. negotiator William J. Porter said "Each of us is aware that the restoration of peace in Vietnam is approaching. Each of us is equally well aware of the efforts being made to refine and perfect the accomplishments of the negotiation so that a settlement fair to all will result."

In a brief prepared statement to the meeting, Porter avoided any reference to substantive issues but urged the Communist side to avoid "exaggerated rhetoric and unfounded charges of bad faith."

He declared that "our discussions should be directed toward the goal of peaceful settlement, much nearer than we imagined only a few weeks ago."

We have come this far because of negotiations conducted in good will and with constructive purpose. Still further progress will come to us through the same means."

Phong told newsmen as he arrived for the meeting that his government regards such a withdrawal and restoration of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam as "essential elements" of any agreement.

The draft, as outlined by Hanoi and discussed with newsmen by Kissinger, makes no mention of either point. American sources have said that Tho in his secret meetings in Paris last month with Kissinger gave him to understand that some North Vietnamese would be withdrawn from the northern part of South Vietnam. But the implication has been that most of Hanoi's forces in the South would stay where they were.

Tho was in Moscow today en route to Paris from Hanoi, and he and Kissinger were expected to meet in Paris this weekend for what the U.S. presidential adviser has said would be their final round of talks to agree on details and the wording of the agreement.

Thuy charged that the United

LONDON (AP) — U.S. officials requested the British Royal Air Force today to investigate the reported finding of wreckage of the aircraft in which Joseph Kennedy Jr. — elder brother of President John F. Kennedy — was killed in World War II.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said its air attaché had contacted the RAF informally.

Stewart Evans, a police officer in Lowestoft in eastern England, said Wednesday he had found an engine, part of the fuselage and one wing of Kennedy's bomber. Evans, who is interested in locating World War II wrecks, said the aircraft parts were buried in a wood in Suffolk, northeast of London.

Kennedy, a 29-year-old Air Force lieutenant, died when his Liberator bomber blew up in flight Aug. 12, 1944 soon after taking off to attack a German rocket base on the French coast. Kennedy's copilot, Lt. Bud Wylie, also was killed.

The Liberator carried a 10-ton bomb load. Kennedy's task was to get the four-engine aircraft into the air from a base in Norfolk, home it onto the target and then bail out with his copilot while still over British soil. The plane is thought to have blown up when Kennedy switched over to the automatic

Assembly GOP picks John Shabaz leader

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Assembly Republicans elected State Rep. John Shabaz of Waukesha their minority leader Wednesday to succeed 8th District Representative Harold V. Froehlich of Appleton.

Shabaz's seat as assistant minority leader was immediately filled by State Rep. Tommy Thompson of Elroy, a 30-year-old lawmaker closely tied to the Froehlich-Shabaz faction which has controlled the GOP Assembly caucus since the 1967 session.

State Rep. John Albers of Oconomowoc survived an attempt to unseat him as caucus chairman, however. The attempt, according to caucus sources, was directly tied to Shabaz and discontent over the GOP's poor showing in the Assembly election last week.

The Republicans picked up only three seats, bringing their total to 36. Early GOP predictions called for substantial gains in the lower house of the Legislature, bringing the Republicans within a few seats of a majority after the 1970 landslide tied to Democrat Patrick Lucey's election as governor.

Shabaz was all-but-openly working for the election of State Rep. Joseph Tregoning of Shullsburg to replace Albers, according to sources within the caucus.

The caucus chairman sits as chairman of the Assembly Republican campaign committee and directs the state paid partisan staff which assists

3 senators cool to pay increase plan

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The $1,000 pay increase for legislators proposed by the Citizen Legislative Compensation Council received a cool reception Wednesday from three state senators.

Republican Sens. James Swan of Elkhorn, Everett Bidwell of Portage and Milo Knutson of La Crosse testified at a hearing conducted by state Personnel Director Carl Wettengel.

Swan noted the increase from $8,900 to $9,900 per year was about 11 per cent, and said the Federal Wage Control Commission had sued the state of Missouri to stop a hike of 10 per cent.

A $5 raise in the current $20 expense allowance for legislative business was proposed by Swan to compensate the leaders who spend more time on the job. He said the federal government allows up to $32.50 per day for expenses.

"Some young men simply can't afford the gaff of getting the wage level of a family of four on welfare, which is about $8,900 a year," he said.

Bidwell said legislators had to be dedicated.

"When I ran for the office, I was very much aware of what the compensation would be," he said.

Swan and Bidwell, who along with 13 other state senators are midway in their four year terms, would not be eligible for the wage hike unless they were reelected in 1974.

Knutson said legislative pay should be decreased rather than increased.

The pay hike was supported by Robert Pease, president of the Wisconsin State Employees Union, who said its cost to taxpayers was so small it couldn't be found in a $2 billion budget.

Wettengel said he would make a recommendation to the state Personnel Board on the issue Monday. It will then go to the State Employment Relations Council, a panel of legislators, which has the authority to make the final decision.

A raise proposed in 1970 was rejected by the state Board on Government Operations, which then had authority on the issue.

Recreation land use quota plan to be studied

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources plans to hold a public hearing next month on proposed park rule changes that could include a reservation system, a DNR official said Tuesday.

Parks Division Administrative Assistant Rodney Nelson said the proposed rules would permit a free open house day for all state residents at each park or forest recreation area, and would include changes to reduce overuse and damage.

Nelson said a reservation plan has not been spelled out yet by the department, and the hearing would be to "get the pulse of the public" on the idea.

One rule would allow only one recreation vehicle or trailer on each campsite, Nelson said. Campsites are limited now to the use of a single family, but that sometimes includes more than one vehicle, Nelson said.

Another change would give the department authority to close state lands to snowmobiling when there has not been enough snow to protect underlying vegetation, he said.

The rules would also require year-round use of an admission fee sticker at some of the busier state parks, he said. State law now calls for stickers from April 1 to Nov. 1.

Hearing scheduled on Kewaunee A-plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Public hearings on an application for a license to operate a $166 million nuclear power plant in Kewaunee County, Wis., are scheduled to begin Jan. 30.

The Atomic Safety and Licensing Board slated the hearings Wednesday and said they would be held in either Kewaunee or Milwaukee.

The license being sought by the Wisconsin Public Service Corp., the Madison Gas and Electric Co. and the Wisconsin Power and Light Co., has been opposed by a number of environmental groups who contend the plant could have an adverse impact on Lake Michigan.

Revenue sharing no bonanza, Lucey says

MADISON (AP) — It would be wrong to view federal revenue sharing as a "fiscal bonanza," Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Wednesday, because the funds may "come at a price which is not yet clear."

"Because no new tax measures were enacted at the federal level to cover the cost of revenue sharing, we will all pay in inflation and higher taxes," Lucey said.

The governor, a strong advocate of revenue sharing, made the comments in remarks for Minnesota and Wisconsin municipal officials at a federal revenue sharing regional conference. Lucey said there have been rumors of possible federal cutbacks in some areas to provide funds for the federal government to share with the states.

For example, Lucey said, Wisconsin's 1973 share of housing and urban development funds "will reportedly be one-fifth less than what it was in 1972."

"Similar slashes are being discussed in the areas of manpower, model cities and housing," he added. "If such cutbacks occur across the board, states and localities might well look back nostalgically on the 'good old days' before revenue sharing."

Lucey said Wisconsin's highest priority must be to see that revenue sharing funds go to relieve property taxes.

He recommended local governments adopt measures similar to ones he has employed on the state level, such as a oneyear freeze on the number of permanent state jobs and initiation of a requirement that agencies improve their productivity by 2½ per cent per year.

Lucey says loss was inevitable

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — In a post-election reversal, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Wednesday that Sen. George M. McGovern's Democratic presidential campaign was never winnable.

Adding that party officials should not "hound" Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood from office, Lucey said that the mental health history of one-time vice presidential nominee Thomas Eagleton was not the deciding factor in the campaign.

"No matter what Democrat ran for president in 1972, Mr. Nixon would have been re-elected," said Lucey in a press conference here.

"Once you agree on that, it doesn't make much difference whether you carry one state or five or seven or 12," he added.

Only the presence of Alabama Gov. George Wallace on the presidential ballot as a third party candidate could have made a difference, he said, echoing remarks of McGovern after the Nixon landslide.

Lucey maintained up to election day that McGovern had a chance of winning the presidency and certainly would carry Wisconsin, based on the organization built here during the spring primary.

Lucey said that the Wallace vote could have swung a number of states away from the Nixon victory column and into McGovern's camp, had the Alabama governor not been shot during the primaries.

Wisconsin might have been one of those states, he said. Nixon carried Wisconsin with about 54 per cent of the vote.

Lucey made his remarks following a daylong conference with federal officials about revenue sharing procedures. He was co-host of the conference with Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson.

Anderson met earlier this week with other Democratic governors in Washington and backed moves aimed at the removal of Party Chairman Westwood, McGovern's personal choice for the campaign.

Lucey said that he had not had a chance to talk with Wisconsin's members of the Democratic National Committee, and had come to no conclusions as to whether she should remain in office.

He has been in party politics long enough to know, however, that it does the party no good to "hound" a leader out of office, said Lucey.

State not getting its share of federal funds, official claims

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Six Great Lakes area states have been consistently behind the rest of the nation in the amounts of federal aids they received during the past 10 years, Bob Milbourne, executive assistant on the Wisconsin Department of Administration, said today.

The states must move now to break the pattern, he said.

He made the comments at a meeting of state and local officials from Minnesota and Wisconsin with the federal regional council, a panel made up of regional officials from seven major federal agencies.

Milbourne cited statistics showing that Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan have ranked last since 1968 in the per capita distribution of federal grants.

The six states make up one of the country's 10 federal regions.

Milbourne said although the region contains 20 per cent of the nation's population, it received only eight cents for every tax dollar paid the federal government in 1970, an amount which also placed it last among the 10 regions.

He said figures on the states' per capita income, their urban population and their poverty levels reveal "no clear reason" for the low proportion of federal money.

"The aggregate effect has been distribution of money away from this region," Milbourne said.

The reason, he said, appears to be either "relatively fewer applications, failure to meet the federal prerequisites for funding, or we are not doing as aggressive a job as others in seeking funds."

Milbourne said that among the six states, Wisconsin consistently has ranked last in the per capita amount of federal aids, and Minnesota consistently has ranked first.

State and local officials, he said, "should prod and pressure the federal regional council to exercise its role as

The nation's Democratic governors are expected to make a recommendation on the party chairmanship at a meeting Dec. 3 in St. Louis.

On other matters, Lucey said that unless local officials toe the line on property taxes, the Legislature will have to impose some form of financial controls on local government next year to prevent revenue sharing funds from being spent on new or low priority programs.

Journalism popular

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A 206 per cent increase in undergraduate journalism majors at the University of Wisconsin Madison campus since 1966 to 1,456 students was reported Wednesday by the school.

University officials said data compiled in a national survey indicated journalism school enrollments were up generally nationwide.

Part of subsidy held up

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

Appleton City Transit, Inc., won $15,186 of its September and October subsidy demands from the city council Wednesday.

But aldermen tossed handfuls of slugs in the coin box for good measure in the form of stinging criticism of the bus line.

The payment is $1,440 less than the line said it lost during the two months. The city is withholding the remainder for further study, since it constitutes legal and accounting fees the company paid to present its abandonment plea to the Public Service Commission in September.

After the proceedings, the PSC ruled that the city would have to cover all the line's operating losses if the buses were to continue running. Officials have asked for more time to decide whether taxpayers should finance the action that led the city deeper into the bus line's financial trouble.

Ald. Donald Day (19th) noted that the line has given raises to its drivers and increased its lease payments to its parent firm, Fox River Bus Lines, for use of buses and other facilities and manpower.

Day said he was appalled that the line should finance such items from a city subsidy, saying the request "takes a lot of guts."

He said the city should "remind the bus line that the pot of gold doesn't last forever."

Ald. LeRoy Stohlman (7th) asked whether the city has the authority to send an auditor in to examine books of Appleton City Transit and Fox River Bus Lines.

Finance Director Reynold Running said he doubts the city has authority to investigate Fox River's books, since the Public Service Commission ruling covered only the operations of Appleton City Transit.

Running added that the PSC reviewed the increase from $6 to $7.55 per hour in the lease payments and "considered it to be — apparently — fair and equitable."

Mayor James Sutherland sought to soothe the critics, pointing out that the council had been warned prior to the PSC hearings that the bus line planned to change its system of determining the amount of the lease payments.

Running said he and Reserve Judge Andrew Parnell, as well as the city's auditing consultant, had examined the bus line's records and had been satisfied that there was "no point of disagreement" with the bus company's calculations of its losses, except for the $1,440 being withheld for further review.

Aldermen also complained before paying another bill, an $8,635 tab to Milwaukee County Hospital for an Appleton relief recipient who was rushed to the hospital for emergency kidney treatment after sniffing heroin.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) persuaded the council through the finance committee to make the payment under protest, after City Atty. David Geenen ruled that there is no way the city can collect all or part of the sum from the relief recipient.

Geenen and Welfare Director Merton Ehrlicke both told the council there is no doubt that the 21-year-old man was eligible for relief and that the city was obligated to pay for his basic needs, including medical expenses, regardless of the cause of his illness.

Kalata said the man "took dope and blew his kidneys, and I don't think that's the obligation of the city." He added he hopes the Legislature will change relief laws so similar incidents won't occur in the future.

In another action, Ald. Ralph West (20th) kept alive debate over fees for fire department rescue service, which he advocates increasing to at least the average charged by the city's two private ambulance services. The finance committee had recommended denial of the proposal, which opponents argued would be too complicated to execute and is unnecessary because competition between the city and private firms has been curbed through cooperation.

West sent the recommendation back to the committee.

The council adopted new snow removal assessment rates for this winter for areas where snow is hauled away from private terraces. The price is being boosted a nickel, to 65 cents per foot on streets and 35 cents per foot in alleys.

The council also served notice that it will stop hauling snow away from private terraces when the service is unnecessary to benefit motorists. Some 26 properties have been receiving such service and will continue to receive it, at a fee, this winter. But it will stop a year from now.

The mayor and city attorney were authorized to negotiate an option to buy the Geo. Walter Brewing Co. property on Walnut Street in case it is chosen as the new police station site.

Aldermen rejected a request by John Koopman, 215 N. Lawe St., to put off paying a special assessment for a recently installed sanitary sewer lateral until he disconnects his home from a line he shares with a neighbor and connects to the new line.

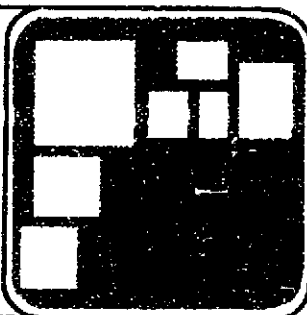

Several streets proposed for the 1973 concrete paving program were deleted, at least temporarily, and sent back to committee for reconsideration after

Treadbare

Appleton police told a motorist Wednesday night that when you lose a burning tire from your car, you just don't drive home on the other three.

The man was ticketed for driving without proper tire equipment after police followed a trail of scratch marks in the road from the E. College Avenue bridge to his residence in the 500 block of N. Bateman Street about 10:15 p.m.

The man's problem started when the burning tire came off the right rear wheel as he was crossing the College Avenue bridge. After receiving a report of the burning tire, police went to the scene, where they summoned the fire department to extinguish and remove the tire while they went looking for the three-tired vehicle.

The scratch marks from the bare wheel took them west on College Avenue to Rankin Street, north on Rankin to Franklin Street, west on Franklin to Union Street, north on Union to Pacific Street, west on Pacific to Bateman Street and south on Bateman to the man's home.

When the police arrived at the man's residence, he told them he had continued driving because he didn't have a key to get the spare tire out of the car's trunk.

The scratch marks caused no serious damage to the streets.

Calumet part of city due for 4.7% tax cut

There was good news for Calumet County property taxpayers in Appleton today. Rather than a 2 per cent increase in their tax rate, the city's finance department has learned that there will be a tax cut of at least 4.7 per cent.

The reason is action taken recently by the Calumet County Board reducing the tax levy for county purposes below preliminary figures used in calculating Appleton's proposed tax rate.

Finance Director Reynold Running had calculated a net tax rate of $75.22 on each $1,000 worth of property at assessed value. That would have meant an increase of $1.44 over the previous tax rate for the Calumet County portion of the city.

But the figures included an estimated tax rate for county purposes of $14.46. The final rate based on the budget adopted by the county board is $9.43.

As a result, Calumet County property owners in Appleton will experience a rate cut nearly five times the size proposed for the Outagamie County portion of the city, where 95 per cent of the tax base lies. Running's preliminary Outagamie rate, based on Mayor James Sutherland's uncut budget, is $75.92 per $1,000 valuation, a reduction of 1 per cent, or 79 cents below the previous rate.

That includes an Outagamie County tax rate of $13.19, however. The Outagamie County Board has yet to adopt a final budget and tax levy, so that figure too is subject to change.

In addition, the City Council can still make further reductions by cutting the mayor's budget following the official hearing scheduled for next Monday night at City Hall.

The council's finance committee, at Sutherland's urging, has already recommended one cut of $91,000 from next year's proposed contingency reserve fund, which would reduce property taxes in both parts of the city by nearly 50 cents.

Supervisors cut highway funds

In an almost unprecedented move, the Outagamie County Board cut $230,000 from the county highway construction budget on the recommendation of the highway committee after pressure had been exerted by a group of supervisors for better accounting of highway funds.

The highway budget as approved this morning calls for a county tax levy of $963,037. This is $201,142 less than had been submitted by the highway committee. While the $230,000 was being cut, $28,858 was added to other projects.

Cuts made were in reducing the County Trunk W project from $255,000 to $195,000; elimination of the E. College Avenue extension from State 55 to County Trunk Q, $90,000; elimination of traffic signals at County Trunk OO intersections with Country Trunks A, E and N, $45,000, and elimination of the traffic signal and reconstruction of the County Trunk OO and Oneida Street intersection, $35,000.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, long a thorn in the side of the highway department, started the pressure Wednesday afternoon, noting that the highway department had a cash balance of more than $800,000 at the end of 1971 for projects which had not been completed. He also said that department records indicated they have never done more than $600,000 in construction work in any one year.

He urged that the proposed 1973 construction program of $672,000 be cut in half. "They can't do all of the work this year anyway."

Supv. Ervin Conradt, chairman of the highway committee, charged that Kloes' proposal would "hamstring the highway department and create havoc."

He urged the board to leave the programs in for the next several years. "Then we'll be done with the rebuilding programs and you can fire the employees and sell the equipment."

This morning, however, Conradt said the committee and Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson had reviewed the budget for several hours and could suggest the $230,000 in cuts.

Supv. Ted LaPin said he did not object to the projects proposed, but did object to the way department finances were handled.

He suggested accepting the proposed list of projects but not fund the entire amount from the tax levy. He said highway department should submit a review of all of its projects with initiation dates, completion dates, the cash flow demand for each project and with the projected — dates of expenditures.

The review, he said, also should include the status of projects authorized in 1971 for which the $807,000 was left unexpended, and the status of 1972 projects with dates of start and completion.

An alternative to that, LaPin said, would be to hold up the entire highway budget until the information was available so that an exact amount of money can be put in the budget for 1973.

Assistant DAs take pay cuts

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Salaries of the two assistant district attorneys were cut by the Outagamie County Board Wednesday as some supervisors felt the present salaries were too high for new men in the posts and were piqued that the district attorney had not consulted the board about salaries of his present assistants.

The board set a base salary of $14,000 for the first assistant and $10,000 for the second assistant. However, 4 per cent wage increases granted other employees will apply to the assistants as well, making their actual salaries as of Jan. 1, $14,560 and $10,400, respectively.

At the present time the assistants receive $16,500 and $12,500. Both men were hired about three months ago by Dist. Atty. James Long at the same salaries as their predecessors.

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, chairman of the board's personnel committee argued, "We're not trying to cut the present salaries. The present assistants are hired only until Jan. 1. Then its up to Enslley."

John Enslley takes office as district attorney at that time and has the authority to hire his own assistants. Babbitt added that Enslley had assured him he would have no trouble finding assistants at the lower salaries.

Supvs. Eugene Kloes and John Kellogg sought to have the salaries set at $15,000 and $11,800, but were defeated 32-7.

Kloes said he did not think the board could morally reduce the salaries at this point. "If the assistants were under contract we wouldn't have this problem," Kloes said. "Now your cutting the salaries and putting everyone in an embarrassing situation."

Kloes, who is a member of the board's judiciary and enforcement committee, argued, "We must have a strong district attorney's office to protect the public." He noted the county will be hiring indigent defense attorneys at a higher salary ($12,000 each) than the second assistant district attorney.

Kellogg, who is an attorney, agreed. "When you underpay you have a big turnover," he said. "An inexperienced assistant district attorney makes it easier for the defense attorneys."

Approval of the reduced salaries came by the same 32-7 vote by which Kloes' amendment lost.

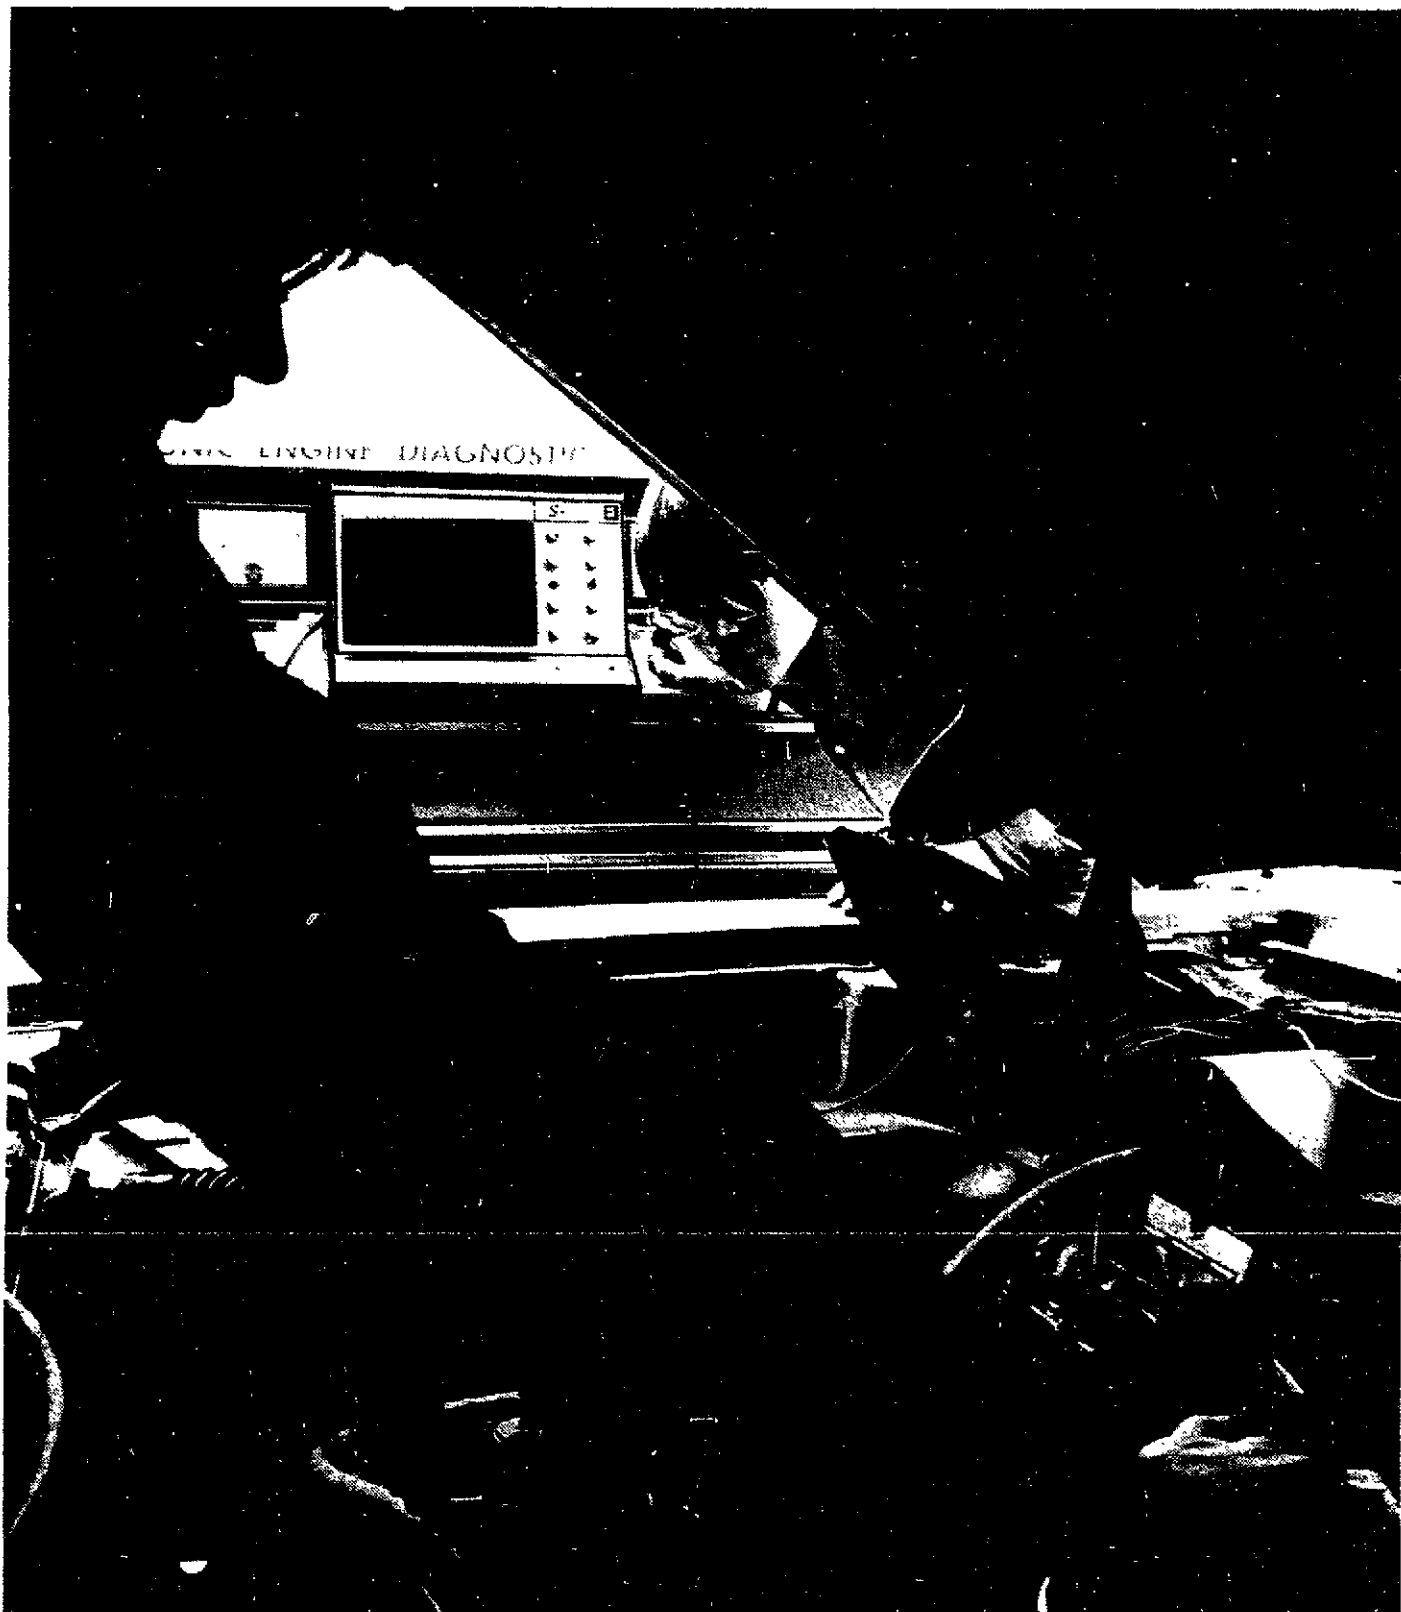

Other employees fared better on salaries, however, as the board approved 4 per cent wage increases for all county employees and officials except those in unions where negotiations are still in progress.

The 4 per cent settlements involved the Courthouse Employees Association and Unit 1 of the Social Services Department, County Health Center union, all civil service department heads and contract employees and the elected county officials.

Babbitt said the 4 per cent represents only a cost of living increase.

While there were a few supervisors opposed to granting any wage increases, the only major opposition was to providing term life insurance.

Higher Kimberly budget calls for lower tax rate

KIMBERLY — The village board has adopted a tentative 1973 budget which calls for higher expenditures but allows for a drop in the net tax rate over 1972.

Total expenditures of $2,223,176 are proposed, $66,354 more than in 1972. Of this, $1,753,503 would be raised by taxes, which is just $8,239 more than the current levy.

Officials expect the next tax rate for 1973 to be $54.21 per $1,000 assessed valuation, which is down from the current $56.15 rate. This is because of a larger tax credit anticipated from the state. The rate before state credits is about $60 per $1,000 for both years.

An increase of revenues from $411,557 to $469,673 for other than the tax levy accounts for the stabilization of the tax rate. Built into this year's proposed budget is a 6 per cent increase in salaries to help offset salaries which were frozen when the 1972 budget was adopted.

Salary adjustments in 1972 were made from a $10,000 contingency fund not found in the 1973 budget. A public hearing on the budget has been called for 7 p.m. Nov. 27. Village Clerk Mrs. Kathryn Lochschmidt offered to answer any questions on the budget prior to the public hearing.

The proposed budget lists general government costs at $92,915, up about $6,000 from the 1972 figure of $86,902. Much of the increase is due to added Social Security and retirement expense.

Protection of persons and property in 1973 is estimated to cost $107,499 compared to $99,537 in 1972 with $7,000 of the total increase earmarked for an

Little Chute taxpayers would gain

BY ROBERT LAUX
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

LITTLE CHUTE — The village's proposed 1973 budget calls for a $2.61 decrease in the tax rate for most property owners, and a whopping $9.90 cut for taxpayers living within the Kaukauna School District.

Village officials finished the budget package this week, and will present it to the taxpayers at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Nov. 28. They budgeted a total of $599,355 for village services and capital outlays in 1973, an increase of $82,000 over the 1972 budget.

But a corresponding increase in village revenues, mostly from federal revenue sharing, will offset the spending hike and bring down the tax levy for village purposes to $210,868 — $2,897 less than the 1972 levy. The total tax levy, for the village, vocational district, county, state and two school districts, will be $916,429, compared with $886,761 this year.

Property owners living in the Little Chute School District will pay $79.40 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, and owners in the Kaukauna district will pay $73.96. Last year, the rates were set at $82.01 and $83.86, respectively.

Several factors account for the $2.61 decrease in the Little Chute district. First, the assessed valuation of that section of the village went up $168,000 this year, strengthening the tax base. Second, $100,000 in federal share funds is expected for 1972-73 — making up for the loss in 1973 of another source of revenue, the highway privilege tax, and paying for a wide range of capital improvements. Third, the amount of money the village gets back from the state sales tax will slice $8.60 from the gross tax rate of $88. In the 1972 budget, the gross tax rate was the same — $88 — but the state tax credit was $5.99.

These factors also enter into the low tax rate proposed for the Kaukauna School District owners, but the really dramatic drop will come from their share of the school tax levy. In 1972, these taxpayers had a rate of $51.14 to support the Kaukauna school system. In 1973, the tax rate for school purposes will be $44.98, a $6.16 decrease.

The Kaukauna school district section of the village will be paying $6,500 more in school taxes during 1973, so why the sudden drop?

The answer lies in the discrepancy between the ways municipalities and school districts calculate their taxes. A school district preparing its 1973 budget bases its tax levy on the 1971 equalized valuation of the property in the district, while a village uses the 1972 assessed valuation of its property to set its 1973 rate.

In a joint school district such as Kaukauna, each city, village and town within its territory pays property taxes proportionate to its share of the district's total equalized valuation. The total valuation of the Kaukauna district in 1971 was $158 million, and the Little Chute section had an equalized value of $3.9 million, or about 2.5 per cent of the district's worth. Little Chute taxpayers are responsible for 2.5 per cent of Kaukauna's tax levy — $78,167 of the district's $3.1 property tax.

The state "equalizes" the value of each municipality so that communities with varying levels of assessment can be fairly taxed for school purposes, and as a way of determining the amount of money each school district should receive from the state. But because the equalized rates lag a year behind the assessed figures, inequities can creep into school taxation, and this is the case in the Kaukauna levy.

Parishes to vote on St. John fate

LITTLE CHUTE — A congregational vote to determine whether the people of seven parishes want to make St. John Catholic High School a regional high school will be taken early next month.

The vote, which probably will be more advisory than binding, will be taken after a letter giving the parishioners the facts involved is read from the pulpits.

The parishes involved are Holy Cross, St. Mary and St. Aloysius, Kaukauna, St. Paul, Combined Locks, Holy Angels, Darboy, Holy Name, Kimberly, and St. John.

The information was released this week by the Rev. Mark Schommer, superintendent of Catholic schools in the Green Bay Diocese, at a diocesan board of education meeting in Oshkosh.

Schommer did not state how much strength the parish vote would have in the final decision, but both he and the board of education support the concept of making St. John into an area high school.

Both the superintendent and the board have gone on record on a number of occasions favoring regionalization or consolidation if it means retaining "quality Catholic education." There is little question in the case of St. John that unless the school becomes an area school, supported by numerous parishes, it will have to close its doors in the near future.

St. John is the only diocesan high school which has been supported by a single parish. The other eight are regional.

Workshop on criminal justice administration at FVTI on Saturday

Police officers, social workers, judges, lawyers and educators will participate in a workshop on the administration of criminal justice from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

The Workshop, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Appleton and Neenah-Menasha and the law enforcement division of FVTI.

The session will attempt to inform the public of the problems and ideas in the criminal justice field and to increase communication and to exchange ideas between social workers, police, judges, lawyers and others who work in the criminal justice field.

The controversy has been going on for about a year. Last spring the parish voted to stop supporting the school as a single parish, asking that the administration look into the regional concept.

The proposal was met with a great deal of apprehension from the other parishes involved, most of whom have financial difficulties. It was made clear by a number of pastors in the other six churches that an addition to their budgets would cause insurmountable problems. All have acknowledged, however, that St. John is facing a serious problem.

City urged to consider county waste proposals

Appleton should dig into Outagamie County's plans for a countywide solid waste disposal system, according to a resolution filed with the City Council Wednesday by 15 aldermen.

The resolution proposed that either a standing committee of the council or a special committee appointed by the mayor should examine various proposals being considered by the county board.

The aldermen, who represent a three-fourths majority of the 20 member council, pointed out that whatever sustem the county chooses, the city will pay more than half the cost, since that is the portion of the county tax base located in the city.

The findings of the study would be used as the basis for a recommendation from the City Council to the County Board, stating the city's preference among the systems under consideration.

The county study was launched after Allis Chalmers offered to sell the county a waste shredder plant which would serve the county while providing the firm with a demonstration plant to show future customers.

An Appleton High School graduate is heading a drug abuse program in Dane County that he says is the first of its kind in the nation.

The program, said David Joranson, is a turnabout — policemen are trying to keep people out of jail by helping drug abusers get treatment instead of punishment. He is coordinator of the new Dane County Comprehensive Drug Abuse Treatment Program.

Beer and bingo debate goes on and on and on

The beer and bingo debate will resume before an Appleton City Council committee on Nov. 28, the committee chairman has announced.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th), welfare and ordinance committee chairman, said Wednesday his committee will hear the latest arguments in the dispute on that date, a week later that previously announced.

The chairman made the change after other aldermen pointed out that Nov. 21 is the date of the city's downtown Santa Claus parade and Christmas street-lighting ceremonies.

Thompson has held up council action on an ordinance amendment he has offered which would allow non-profit organizations holding one-day picnic beer licenses to conduct games of chance, including bingo.

At present, games of chance are banned from all premises licensed for serving beer or liquor. A police officer has criticized Thompson's amendment publicly, and the chairman has invited the officer and all other interested parties to state their views to his committee before the council acts.

Ex-Kimberly teacher sues district

KIMBERLY — A former teacher, Mrs. Eleanor Stringham, is suing the school district for $100,000 for not renewing her teaching contract.

According to Supt. Ray Hamann, the woman has not been with the system for the last three years. The school board did not offer to renew her contract after she did not return the second semester after a first semester leave of absence. A previous suit by her was dropped when proper legal procedures were not followed.

In other legal action this week, the board agreed to rehire Maureen Hussey, Appleton, as a full-time teacher at Janssen School on the recommendation of an arbitrator with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission. She will be reimbursed for half of the salary she lost since September, if she accepts the board's offer.

The dispute with Miss Hussey centered on an interpretation of a 1971-72 seniority rule. According to that rule, decisions not to renew teaching contracts because of enrollment losses were to be made on the basis of seniority within a school building.

When school administrators began planning the 1972-73 program, it was decided that the kindergarten staff at Janssen would be reduced because of lower enrollment. Miss Hussey had six years seniority in the system and another teacher has 12 years so the board offered Miss Hussey a half-time contract.

She filed a grievance, contending that the board violated the old seniority rule. The other kindergarten teacher, while on the district's payroll for 12 years, had been at Janssen for only four years (she was transferred from Ryan School when the kindergarten there was phased out).

The board argued that her interpretation threatened the seniority of other teachers in the system and held its ground through five stages of the grievance procedure. At the fifth stage — advisory arbitration with WERC — the arbitrator recommended that she be reinstated as a full-time kindergarten teacher.

Since the recommendation was not binding, the board decided to offer a half contract for teaching fourth graders at the school.

Award sewer contract

LITTLE CHUTE — The Village Board Tuesday night awarded a contract for extending sewer and water pipes on Coolidge Avenue and Jackson Street, to Donald Hietpas & Sons Construction, Little Chute. Hietpas offered the low bid of $23,062 and will start work within five days.

Kansas City makes bid for foreign trade

BT CHET CURRIER
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A group of Kansas City leaders hopes soon to bring a larger share of the traditionally coastal foreign trade business to the midst of inland America.

The key to their plan is an old but comparatively unpublished concept — a foreign trade zone.

There are critics who contend the idea offers little that can't be accomplished through other means such as bonded warehouses. But its supporters here, some of whom have already staked a good bit of money on the plan, tout it as a potentially powerful tool for stimulating economic growth.

"It's a complicated concept which many people don't understand," says Marshall Miller, secretary and general counsel for Greater Kansas City Foreign Trade Zone Inc., a nonprofit corporation which is seeking government authorization to begin a zone here by Jan. 1.

"In my travels I don't think I've run into more than half a dozen companies that knew anything about it. But the savings for companies can be enormous."

In simplest terms, a foreign trade zone is a U.S. Customs no man's land — an area where items of foreign origin, whether raw materials, parts or finished goods, can be stored, displayed or processed duty-free under customs supervision. The duty is not paid until an item is brought out of the zone for delivery or sale.

Miller says this offers several advantages to the firms involved, including:

- Freeing money previously tied up unproductively in duty paid on merchandise that is not ready for sale.
- For one company that would take part in the Kansas City zone, Miller notes, that amounts to a daily average of $100,000.
- Providing for ready availability of imported goods for distribution and display.
- Permitting shrinkage, evaporation and waste which occur during processing and storage to take place before payment of the duty.
- Allowing the importer, in the case of goods containing both foreign and U.S.-made parts, to pick the lower of two duties, either on the finished product or on only those parts of it which originated outside the country.

Meanwhile, the zone brings obvious economic benefits to the area in which it is situated, Miller says.

Some 200 foreign trade zones are already operating around the world. The United States has several, in port cities such as New York, San Francisco, Seattle, New Orleans and Toledo, and in Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

Miller says the big difference is that the zone here — unlike any of the others in the nation — would be funded and operated privately rather than through local government.

A private operation is in the best position to put imagination and full promotion into a zone, he maintains. Under cities' port authorities, he says, "foreign trade zones have never been fully developed."

Why Kansas City? For one thing Miller points to highly developed transportation facilities — despite the absence of an ocean — which will be increased in a few months with the opening of an international airport.

The Kansas City document lists three firms as having committed facilities to the project with some 600,000 square feet of indoor space available.

One company would warehouse and distribute Japanese motorcycles; a second would handle electronics items, and the third would use underground facilities to house a variety of imports including Oriental rugs. These separate facilities would be another unusual aspect of the Kansas City zone, Miller observes.

Tunney sends regrets to winning candidate

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — "I am sorry you were not successful in the recent election," read the telegram from U.S. Sen. John Tunney to Walter Ingalls, a fellow Democrat who ran for the California Assembly.

Ingalls says he certainly intends to continue in public service because he won the election.

Why the telegram of condolences? "I guess my name got in the wrong stack," Ingalls said Friday.

TV-11 Responds to a Community Need

WLUK-TV recently conducted a comprehensive survey to sample audience response to television newscasts, in general . . . and TV-11 News, in specific. Among other things, it was discovered that area viewers consider a comprehensive weather report to be of primary importance in a local newscast.

TV-11 General Manager, Tom Hutchison, and News Director, Tom Torinus, took immediate steps to develop the most fully instrumented broadcast weather service in the state.

The result of their efforts is the acquisition of Bob Thomas . . . one of the foremost TV Meteorologists in the nation, plus the most modern radar system in existence . . . one of only six now in use in America.

The new service will be geared to immediate and long-range needs of all viewers including farmers, sportsmen and resort owners, homemakers, retailers, transportation workers and travelers.

Many Americans lack confidence in economy

Although public confidence in the recovery of the economy rose during the recent political campaign, the American people are far from convinced that the battle to control inflation has been won. A substantial 57 per cent of the nation's consumers feel that the prices of most things they buy "are rising faster than they were a year ago."

Public concern about the cost of living runs so deep that doubts are rising again over whether the country is still in a recession. In early September, a substantial majority of the

Police and fire

Appleton firemen were called to the 1000 block of W. Browning Street about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday to extinguish rubbish burning in a hole at the rear of a house construction site.

No damage estimate was available from an awning fire at Hauert's Pet & Garden Store, 604 W. College Ave., about 11 p.m. Wednesday. Cause of the fire was not known.

Board has granted "to many wage hikes," it is apparent that the American people are convinced not enough has been done to keep prices, even more than wages, in line.

The pressures over unemployment are lower than they were earlier in the year, but they, too, began to rise late in October. Thus, the Nixon Administration is not out of the woods of public concern over the twin worries of higher prices and higher unemployment taking place at the same time.

Between Oct. 24 and 26, a nationwide cross-section of 1,648 households was asked, as the Harris Survey has people, 52-33 per cent, felt that the recession was at last over. Only eight weeks later, at the end of October, a much less convincing plurality, 46-37 per cent, felt that the economy was "not in a recession."

Criticism of the Nixon Administration economic policies is aimed primarily at the Price Commission, with a substantial 55 per cent of the public holding the view that it has "allowed too many price increases." Although 37 per cent also think the Pay periodically asked over the past two years:

"Do you feel the prices of most things you buy are rising more rapidly than a year ago, about as rapidly as they were then, less rapidly than a year ago, or are they going down?"

Jan.	65	28	5	1	1

The significant fact about prices is that as far as the consuming public goes, a majority sees the cost of living still going up unchecked and unabated. The main reason, most people feel, is that not enough has been done by the Federal Price Commission to keep prices in line with the 2.5 per cent guidelines.

The cross-section was asked: "In the way it has supervised price increases, do you feel the Federal Price Commission has allowed too many big price increases, too few, or about the right number of big price increases?"

June	53	3	24	20
May	59	3	21	17
March	54	3	21	22

Although the latest estimates of the effectiveness of Price Commission decisions on specific price hikes is essentially unchanged from earlier in the year, the fact remains that a majority of the American people feel that the Commission is not tough enough in its administration of price increases requests from business.

As a result of this worry over continuing higher prices, public concern over slipping back into a recession, which dropped significantly earlier this fall, has not continued that downward trend lately.

The cross-section was asked: "Do you feel the country is in a recession today or not?"

While obviously the deep worries of 1971 over the economy have not yet returned to the American people, concern is nonetheless substantial. Hopes for an early end to the present system of economic controls may well be dashed in the process.

Little Chute School District to update administrative policies

LITTLE CHUTE — The board of education has started to update the school district's formal administrative policies, and this week adopted the first policy series on community relations. Presently most school policies are contained in the minutes of old meetings. Board President Richard Kilsdonk said the board has tried to develop a formal policy on at least four occasions during the past six years, but the effort was never sustained. Now Supt. Mark Stone is researching the policies, and board members are helping to write and amend the series. Kilsdonk and Stone reported that they were unsuccessful in trying to obtain LAWCON funds for developing an athletic field east of the high school. A representative from the state Department of Natural Resources told them that the federal money could not increase in police department salaries. Conservation of health costs for 1973 were listed at $94,810 compared to $81,658 in 1972 with about $4,000 of the increase represented in garbage disposal labor costs and $8,000 more for sewerage treatment plant planning work. Education, recreation and library costs for 1973 are set at $69,884 compared to $60,900 in 1972, with the majority of the increase again in salaries. Highway and service garage expense was set at $138,820, compared to $127,332, with increased costs for labor, street lighting and maintenance materials accounting for the majority of the hike. Unclassified expenses dropped from $92,000 to $87,000, but the special contingency fund of $10,000 was included in the area this year and dropped for 1973. Bonded indebtedness payments also show a decrease from $185,414 to $171,533. Outlays were increased from $60,400 this year to $91,000 in 1973. Major reason for the increase is an appropriation of $30,000 for utilities to be installed in the industrial park. Total budget for village operation was listed at $852,461 in 1973 compared to $794,243 in 1972. School District No. 6 appropriation amounts to $999,808 down slightly from $1,004,234 in 1972. An increase was noted in the budget for FVTI-12 from $55,663 to $59,151. State and county taxes also increased from $302,680 in 1972 to $310,754 in 1973. Anticipated receipts other than the tax levy remained about the same for both years with the exception of an anticipated $55,000 federal aid revenue sharing in 1973 compared to none in 1972 and $10,000 in special assessments compared to none in 1972. Previously, the village kept special assessments in a revolving account for new street work, but now all streets are improved and this fund has been discontinued. Under existing village ordinances, cost of permanent streets now added to the village must be paid by the person developing the property for building.

Little Chute . . .

in the village industrial park, the assessed value of the Kaukauna School District section jumped $337,000 during 1972. The $78,000 tax levy figured on 1971 equalized valuation is now supported by a much larger tax base, so that the tax rate will drop $6.16, from school purposes alone. (Since Little Chute's assessed value is 34.68 per cent of the equalized value, the section is really worth about $4.7 million to the school district.) Since no other portions of the Kaukauna district experienced similar growth during 1972, these municipalities are paying a disproportionately high share of Kaukauna school taxes, and Little Chute, whose share is really higher than 2.5 per cent, will get a tax break in 1973. The equalized value of the section would normally catch up with the area's true worth next year — but village taxpayers can expect another tax break from the 1974 Kaukauna school budget, because more expansion is expected in the industrial park . . . and so on. A further breakdown of the full village budget shows that county and state taxes amount to $156,810; the vocational district tax, $28,921; Little Chute School District tax, $444,450. Of the federal revenue funds, village officials are holding another $30,000 in escrow because they aren't positive that the village will get it. This amount was not included as revenue, and did not play a part in setting the tax rates.

Salaries

based on the employee's salary, at county expense. The life insurance provision will cost the county about $21,000 for the 560 employees, Babbitt said. The fringe benefit was first granted the sheriff's department last year. Supv. Al Lewandowski said he could understand providing life insurance for the sheriff's department since their jobs were hazardous, but he couldn't see it for the rest of the employees. Supv. John Schreiter said he had argued last year that granting it to the sheriff's department would open the door to the rest of the employees. "Fringes are at a point of becoming a terrible burden on the taxpayers," Schreiter said. Schreiter's motion to eliminate the insurance benefit lost 18-16.

be used for educational facilities. A master plan prepared by the old Fox Valley Council of Governments showed that a park should be built in the high school neighborhood. The 33 acres adjacent to the school could be used for a neighborhood park, but the school has not yet decided how much land is needed for athletic facilities. Stone reported that 21 students have moved out of the school district or transferred to other schools since the third Friday in September, and that the district has gained two, for an enrollment loss of 19. Total enrollment in now 938. The board voted to support a Kimberly legislative proposal that would put some teeth into the state's prohibition against strikes by public employees. The Kimberly school board is sponsoring a resolution, to be presented to the convention of the Wisconsin Association of School Boards, which calls for a suspension of the state requirement that school districts offer 180 teaching days, in case of a teachers strike. Kimberly Supt. Ray Hamann says that teachers know school days lost through a strike must be made up, and that they are in no danger of losing wages because of an illegal strike. If a school district — which is reluctant to get an injunction against a strike — fails to make up the lost days, the state school superintendent can order that all the district's state aids be cancelled. The Kimberly resolution seeks legislation that would allow the state superintendent to pro-rate the amount of state aids a district receives, according to the number of teaching days, if the number falls below 180 because of a strike. Hamann said this formula is one alternative in the resolution. Another approach would pro-rate the teachers' wages, while granting the district the full 180-days of state aids. In either case, teachers would lose money if they went on strike, because their contracts are based on 180 days of actual teaching. Hamann sent copies of the resolution to 30 school districts in this area, asking for their support. The WASB convention is Jan. 17-19, in Milwaukee.

KAUKAUNA — A 33-year-old Neenah man was reported in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital today, after he suffered extensive head and internal injuries in a two-car accident on Outagamie County Trunks N and K just before midnight Wednesday. Injured was Robert Lennert, 110 Fourth St., Neenah. residents objected, during a public hearing on special assessments, to paying for the projects. Work on segments of Matthias, Calumet, Tracy and Morrison streets was removed from the list, while the council ordered assessments levied for work planned on sections of Marquette, Schaefer, Esther, Madison, Sharon, Spring, Alexander and Oneida streets and Fountain Avenue. An alley between Pacific Street and railroad tracks, west of Oneida Street, also was removed, to be transferred to the asphalt paving program which comes up later for approval. The council approved a fire department request to have the park department build a launching ramp in the Telulah or Peabody Park areas for the city's emergency boat. Instructions were issued to start seeking replacements for Personnel Director Gerald Lang and Traffic Engineer Walter Johnson, both of whose resignations were received in the past few days. The adult crossing guard at Durkee Street and Wisconsin Avenue near St. Therese School was ordered eliminated, with alternate safety precautions also ordered. Preliminary site plans for the 400 unit Appleton Village Townhouses development immediately west of Appleton High School-East were approved, with Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) casting the only vote against the development in his ward.

bought by the city to provide right-of-way for approaches to the proposed high-level Oneida Street bridge. Ald. Edward Maloney (9th) sent back to the board of public works its recommendation to authorize the city clerk to advertise for bids from demolition contractors. The houses are located at 208, 218 and 224 W. Prospect. They are among the city's most recent acquisitions for bridge-approach right-of-way. The former Congregational Church was recently razed for the same purpose. Before taking his action during Wednesday's city council meeting Maloney said the city should stop spending money on the bridge approaches until after an expected spring referendum when voters will be asked whether they favor building the structure. "If we're not going to build the bridge, what are we going to do with the property?" he asked. City Clerk Elden Broehm told the alderman that if the buildings are left standing, the city will need to pay for insurance. Ald. Delmar Schwaller (16th) said, "It is pretty well accepted that a bridge will be built at some time." Until then, he cited two choices, either holding the property with the buildings standing and paying for insurance, or holding vacant lots. A supporter of the bridge project, Maloney nevertheless disagreed with Schwaller's opinion that the project is a certainty. Maloney said he doesn't agree that the city will continue to put the project to referendum until it passes.

MR. MERCHANT:

CAUGHT WITH YOUR SALES DOWN?

Every retailer knows the old saw about the roadside seller of wares who decided he could save advertising expenditures and stay in business . . . and, of course, wound up going broke.

But often, expenditure for advertising is not the only answer. It's how you spend the money and what you get for it that really counts. Often, the simple, factual, down-to-earth newspaper ad outsells the fussy, over-crowded, "busy" ad that really doesn't stick to fundamentals.

You need the help of an experienced advertising counselor — representing an experienced advertising staff — to plan an effective advertising campaign. Your counselor from The Post-Crescent is just such person and furthermore he can advise you on the exact size and kind of market your ad will reach . . . and he can guarantee the size, too!

That's why good advertising in The Post-Crescent pays, not costs. Because the impact on your potential customers is many times more valuable than what your ad ads cost.

Four fatalities in October on county roads

October was the worst month for traffic fatalities for Outagamie County in 1972, according to figures released today by Lt. Lowell Veitch of the county sheriff's department.

Four persons, including one pedestrian, were killed, one more than during May. To date, 20 persons have been killed in county traffic accidents in 1972, compared with 18 for all of 1971.

In addition to the October fatalities, 78 persons were injured in the 129 accidents, in which 190 vehicles were damaged and property damage totaled $97,956.

Although accidents rose from 108 in September and 97 in October, 1971, the number of arrests declined to 77 from 98 in September and 119 one year ago.

Of the 77 arrests, 17 were for speeding, 14 for failure to yield right-of-way and 10 for illegal passing. As to contributing circumstances to the accidents, 27 were due to speeding, 23 for failure to yield right-of-way and 15 due to animals.

County traffic officers issued 388 warnings.

Women give pricing chief floury dustoff

NEW YORK (AP) — C. Jackson Grayson says the floury dustoff he got from two young women protesting rising food prices was a first for him in his job as chairman of the Price Commission.

Grayson was speaking to the New York Society of Security Analysts when the women, Susan Steinman, 22, and Sharon Ayling, 21, invaded the meeting Wednesday and threw handfuls of flour around the room.

They shouted that the price of flour was too high and asked why Pillsbury had been granted an 11 per cent price increase. They were ejected but no charges were preferred.

When things were calmed down and cleaned up, Grayson said he sympathized with the demonstrators but that controls on food prices could inhibit production.

Grayson said he had been picketed before but that this was the first time anything had been thrown at him. Ironically, he said, the price of flour had declined by 1 per cent this year although over-all food prices have increased by 4.2 per cent since controls were imposed.

Ransom loss leaves airline in difficulty

WASHINGTON (AP)—The reported $2 million ransom Southern Airways paid three hijackers last weekend could put the airline in serious financial difficulty, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

A CAB spokesman Wednesday said loss of the money, which was paid to the three men who took over the airlines' DC9 jetliner Friday near Birmingham, Ala., and landed it in Cuba Sunday, "puts Southern in bad shape."

"For the most recent nine-month period, it converts a small profit into a substantial loss," he said.

The spokesman said Southern "was not making it big" and was partially subsidized by the federal government. He said losing the $2 million makes it "very reasonable that they are in considerable financial difficulty."

It was not known if any portion of the ransom was insured. The United States has asked Cuba to return the money and the hijackers but has not yet received a reply.

Delayed start likely for legislature

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An effort to push back the starting date of Wisconsin's 1973 legislative session gathered momentum Wednesday when Assembly Republicans backed the move.

Joe Phillips, an aide to Assembly Republicans, said leaders from both houses of the legislature will meet to reschedule the starting date for Jan. 2, 1973.

Phillips said an obscure law permits the legislature delay its scheduled start if the first day of the session, which would be Jan. 1 in 1973, falls on a holiday.

Senate Republicans Tuesday left the decision on a starting date up to their leadership.

Cut in U.S. contribution to U.N. budget sought

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States introduces a resolution in the United Nations General Assembly today that would cut its assessment for the world organization's general budget nearly 20 per cent.

"I think we'll win," said one American official.

Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, a Democratic member of the U.S. delegation, was chosen by the Nixon administration to introduce the resolution in the Assembly's administrative and budgetary committee. The proposal, carrying out a directive from the U.S. Congress, specifies that no U.N. member shall contribute more than 25 per cent of the total ordinary expenses of the United Nations.

The U.S. assessment is now 31.52 per cent of the budget, or nearly $64 million this year. It is the largest contribution, more than twice the second-place Soviet Union's 14.18 per cent.

Chief U.S. Delegate George Bush in a statement Wednesday night indicated that the $12 million or more saved if the resolution is adopted would be diverted to other U.N. programs.

Bush said the 25 per cent ceiling would not apply to voluntary U.S. contributions to U.N. economic and social development programs, which now total almost half a billion dollars. In the case of some funds it constitutes almost 80 per cent of the support.

"Our adjustment to the 25 per cent formula in no way proposes any diminution in the over-all commitment of resources to the United Nations system by the United States," Bush said.

He explained that the United States is not proposing a reduction in its assessment just "to save a few million dollars" but rather "as a matter of political equity and realism."

The political-equity argument, as put more bluntly by other U.S. spokesmen in the last year, is that since the enlargement of the Asian and African membership of the United Nations, the U.S. share of U.N. expenses outstrips American influence on U.N. action. This results in agitation in Congress to cut the U.S. payments whenever the United States loses on an emotional issue.

Congress in appropriating the money for the U.S. contribution to the United Nations this year specified that beginning with 1974 the U.S. assessment should be limited to 25 per cent. That restriction was a direct result of the Assembly vote last year expelling Nationalist China.

Another argument in favor of the 25 per cent ceiling is that the United Nations should not be so dependent on one member.

Victim takes revenge

Rep. O'Neill claims he'll win Boggs' post

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One month after House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs disappeared during an Alaskan campaign flight, the man who succeeded him as assistant leader claims he's got the top job nailed down.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, who became whip two years ago when Boggs was elevated to floor leader, says he has more than enough pledges of support to guarantee him Boggs' post.

However, Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida disputes the claim and says his effort to win Boggs' post is doing all right too. But O'Neill has an advantage because he is already on the House Democratic leadership team.

On Oct. 16, Boggs was aboard a light plane with Rep. Nick Begich and two other persons over the Alaskan coast on a flight from Anchorage to Juneau.

Somewhere between Anchorage and Juneau the small plane disappeared, and a month-long search has found no sign of the craft.

Last week Boggs and Begich were re-elected in absentia as members of the new Congress convening Jan. 3. If they aren't found alive by then, their seats could be declared vacant.

The two men's wives are being urged by friends to seek the seats in special elections that would be called by the governors. Mrs. Begich has responded she would run.

Immediately after the Nov. 7 election, O'Neill and Gibbons announced their candidacy for the Boggs' leadership post.

O'Neill's forces claim their candidate already has about 150 pledges of support. That's well over the 123 votes needed on the basis of 244 Democratic seats.

Gibbons said his campaign "is shaping up pretty well." O'Neill, he said, "hasn't got it nailed down."

With the voting to be by secret ballot, there is always the possibility that members may privately promise their support to more than one candidate.

Rep. O'NEILL

Outlook good for small cheese plants

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Despite a decline by more than 50 per cent in the last seven years, the small cheese plant in Wisconsin and its typical specialty cheeses have excellent prospects, according to the president of the Wisconsin Cheese Makers Association.

Robert Streeter said at the group's meeting here that "people like to indicate that the small cheese plants are in trouble," but many are doing very well and have excellent prospects.

There are about 450 cheese plants in the state, compared with 1,057 in 1955. The association represents about 160 of them.

At last week's meeting, Streeter said the mass production required to make large cheese plants efficient leaves an opening for smaller facilities.

"That leaves the market wide open for small plants to go into the specialty markets," he said. "And it is getting so that 40-pound blocks of cheddar and colby longhorns are specialty cheese."

Cheese consumption per capita was up to more than 12 pounds in 1971, he said, predicting that consumer tastes would shift toward more exotic cheeses such as gouda, Italian and blue.

Streeter said a threat to the future of small plants is how they obtain raw milk supplies.

"I believe that control of milk supplies by large cooperatives is a threat to the entire dairy industry," he said. "Farmers are entitled to bargaining power, but the question is to what extent should they have power."

There will be no problem as long as cheese plants which could pay the cost of milk were not shut off from supplies, he said.

Federal law aims at product safety

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The general level of consumer product safety is likely to improve substantially as a result of a new federal law and a new program designed to collect data on accidental injuries.

The new legislation, the Consumer Product Safety Act, extends federal jurisdiction over several hundred products not now monitored by the government for safety hazards. These items range from electric toasters to power mowers.

President Nixon's signature on the measure climaxed a long campaign by consumer advocates for a federal program to reduce hazards from the growing number of consumer products in this country.

A national commission which studied the matter for more than two years estimated that some 30,000 people are killed and 20 million are injured each year in accidents involving products used in or near the home.

Its report urged a law very similar to the one just passed by Congress to reduce the number and severity of such mishaps. No law, of course, can prevent accidents due to human error. But unreasonable hazards can be eliminated so that injuries can be cut down.

Under the new law, the president is authorized to establish a new agency headed by five commissioners. They will have the power to set strict standards for consumer product safety, report serious hazards to the public and seize or ban the most dangerous items.

The agency also would have the power to inspect manufacturing plants and set up a system of labeling so as to notify potential buyers whether a certain product meets federal safety standards.

Of special interest to the general public is a section of the law granting consumers the right to sue a manufacturer for injuries and legal costs. The new agency also has the power to require companies to replace unsafe items or refund the purchase price in certain circumstances.

PRICES GOOD THRU NOV. 19, 1972.

How effective the new program will be may not be known until its leaders are appointed. Much will depend on the type of persons nominated to the commission and the type of enforcement that emerges.

One provision of the law is already in operation. It is a system of collecting detailed data on accidental injuries from around the country on a daily basis.

Such a system was announced last week by the Food and Drug Administration. It is called NEISS (pronounced "nice") for National Electronic Surveillance System. Emergency rooms of 119 hospitals in 30 states are tied into a computer network feeding the data to the FDA.

FDA officials expect to receive information on about 500,000 injuries each year, from which they will investigate 9,000. The purpose is to spot new hazards as they crop up so that the public can be protected as soon as possible.

Already, the system has turned up enough information for the FDA to propose design changes for such products as bicycles and playground equipment. The program has been running on a pilot basis for about a year.

In the first published report, showing injuries from July through September, bicycles had the second highest rate. The highest rate by far was for team sports, led by football. Next in order came baseball and basketball in the team-sports category.

Campaign strategy may haunt president

WASHINGTON — When Sen. Gordon Allott left Washington in early autumn to campaign in Colorado for a fourth term, he was armed with polls showing him far ahead and this comforting reassurance from the White House: If you need help from President Nixon, just say the word.

Allott scarcely suspected he would need help against little-known Republican-turned-Democrat Floyd Haskell. But when late polls showed Haskell gaining rapidly and Allott standing still, Allott's operatives said the word in the form of an SOS to Mr. Nixon. Come quick.

Indeed, such a Nixon trip was tentatively scheduled on the campaign's last weekend. But, in the end, it did not fit in (a big snowfall in Colorado, presidential operatives mutter). So, Gordon Allott, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee with an inflexible record of loyalty to Mr. Nixon, perished without any presidential rescue expedition.

Outraged at president

That treatment of Allott is one source for real anger by Republican politicians in the wake of Mr. Nixon's 49-state sweep. Not since lame-duck President Eisenhower stood aside during the 1958 Democratic landslide has an incumbent President been so excoriated by his own party's members. Though publicly restrained in typical Republican fashion, party leaders are privately outraged in denunciation of their triumphant president.

That outrage seems intense enough to threaten Mr. Nixon's second term in ways he does not appreciate. Republicans in Congress promise to ignore White House entreaties on tough legislation. Some even confess hopes that Mr. Nixon's haughty chamberlains will be implicated in investigations of the Watergate scandal.

In effect, Mr. Nixon's acquiescence in Republican defeats has magnified his lame-duck quality. "From now on, I'll be paddling my own canoe," a hitherto Nixonite state chairman told us. "The price of an invitation to dinner at the White House is too high to pay."

If this feeling persists, the strategy of the 1972 Nixon campaign will have backfired. To avoid mistakes of the past, his managers radically — and wisely — reduced his time on the campaign trail, and that meant wholesale rejection of requests from state candidates. But when it became obvious Mr. Nixon was a landslide winner over Sen. George McGovern no matter what he did, state Republican leaders argue, that strategy needed drastic revision.

Characteristically, the White House is firing back hard in this Republican cold war. Defeated Republican candidates — especially Allott — erred in not tying their campaigns closer to Mr. Nixon. Besides, a last minute presidential visit is a distress signal that hurts more than helps (as, in fact, seemed true of Mr. Nixon's Nov. 3 stop in Providence, R.I., for former Gov. John Chafee's doomed Senate campaign).

Nevertheless, Republican leaders wanted Mr. Nixon — especially in Delaware, where two-term Sen. Caleb Boggs lost to 29-year-old Democrat Joseph Biden With Boggs in trouble, state chairman Gene Bunting personally asked Mr. Nixon twice. Another appeal came from Delaware's most powerful Republican: Tom Evans, co chairman of the Republican National Committee. But Delaware never was on the schedule.

Visit helped in 2 states

Mr. Nixon visited Kentucky Oct. 26 only because managers for former Gov. Louie Nunn, a longtime Nixon ally running for the senate, threatened a public tantrum. Nunn lost anyway. But final weekend Nixon visits to New Mexico and Oklahoma are credited by Republican politicians as helping to capture two Democratic senate seats. More such visits would have done the same they conclude.

But more than regretting lost opportunities, they resent Mr. Nixon's attitude — as shown in open support for Sen. James O. Eastland of Mississippi, one of the last Dixiecrat senatorial barons. The 13 Republican senators who on Oct. 11 signed a letter supporting Eastland's Republican foe, Gilbert Carmichael (getting an amazing 40 per cent of the vote), felt they had more to lose in the senate from the mighty Eastland than did the President. If they risked alienating him, why couldn't Mr. Nixon?

Their outrage has not subsided since election day, a harsh reality Mr. Nixon must now confront. Whereas Lyndon B. Johnson's landslide swept in a docile Democratic majority, Mr. Nixon faces a senate not only more liberal and more Democratic but markedly less friendly on the Republican side of the aisle.

Judge OKs use of voiceprints

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time in Massachusetts, a judge has ruled that "voiceprints," spectrographic impressions of the recorded voice, may be used at a trial.

Judge James C. Roy in Suffolk Superior Court ruled Monday that eight persons facing trial on gambling charges can be required to have their voices recorded to be used as voiceprints.

The decision was a victory for Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne who sought to compare voiceprints of the defendants with those of wiretaps made by his detectives.

Judge Roy ruled against a defense contention that voiceprints are unconstitutional. He ordered that the recordings plus handwriting samples be taken in open court Nov. 27.

The defendants, six men and two women, are Boston area residents.

Winter evenings to glitter with diversity of fashion

Culture mix

Bright nights

Above, the starkly simple beige matte jersey dinner dress with basketweave metallic gold knit cardigan by Gino Charles is one way of lighting up the night. Another way is seen below. Smooth, fluid, soft and ready to opt for any occasion is Girogini's crepe back satin combination of billowy pants and shirty jacket.

Different strokes

Kicky's the word for the tow-piece combination with plenty of pizzazz. Girogini whipped together a whimsical white crepe V-neck halter top and matching free swinging pants clasped with an angelfish belt. Above is a more sedate combination for evening wear. Designed by Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr the black velvet costume mates the little jacket with a bare back halter dress sparkled in rhinestones. Whatever the evening occasion this winter, there's plenty of variety for a fun-for-all holiday season.

Note to teacher perplexes parent

You sure are whipped up about this note, I sighed.

You don't understand, he said. If we don't have one we don't go back to school.

I started to write "Is your teacher a Miss a Ms or a Mrs?"

"I don't know," he pondered. "She owns her own car and carries her own books."

"Dear Ms. Weems," I wrote. "On the other hand, she stayed up to watch the Miss America pageant."

"Dear Miss Weems," I wrote. "It doesn't matter," he shrugged. "When she has her baby we'll have a new teacher."

"Dear Mrs. Weems," I wrote. "Please excuse Brucie from school yesterday."

When he awoke in the morning he complained of stomach cramps and Cross out stomach cramps, he ordered. Tell her I was too sick to watch TV.

Dear Mrs. Weems, Brucie had the urgencies and What does urgencies mean?

Stomach cramps.

"Don't tell her that. The last time you wrote that she put me next to the door and didn't take her eyes off me all day long."

It was your imagination, I said. Do you need a note or not?

"I told you I can't go to school without it."

"Okay then, get me the dictionary and turn to the Ds."

He looked over my shoulder. What does D-I-A-R-R-H-E-A mean?

"It means you sit by the door again," I said, licking the envelope.

Ann Landers

Boss's daughter unhappy

Dear Ann Landers, May I speak in behalf of a persecuted minority that has been discriminated against for years, but no one takes up our cause? I am talking about "The Boss's Daughter."

We are supposed to know everything about the business including what is going to happen in advance, because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We are expected to come in early and stay late if there is anything that needs to be done. No overtime, of course — because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We may not leave for a dental or doctor appointment or for any of the legitimate reasons the other employees take off for — because we are The Boss's Daughter.

We are not included in office talk or any of the fun things that happen — because we are The Boss's Daughter.

If we make a mistake we get twice as much heat from our superiors and then when we get home at night we get more of the same — because we are The Boss's Daughter.

Sign Me, Fed Up — Because I Am the Boss's Daughter.

Dear Fed: An employee who has as many complaints as you can't be very effective.

Furthermore, no girl would stay with a job she hates so thoroughly unless she was darned sure she couldn't do better someplace else — not even The Boss's Daughter.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married 24 years. We have four good children. The youngest is 6.

Ten years ago Tom was promoted from machine operator to foreman. A few years later he was made assistant superintendent. Last year he was made superintendent. Now Tom says the reason he got those promotions was because he gets along so well with the men. What he wants is one night out a week to enjoy male companionship. He says I should play cards with the girls.

This week he informed me that all our friends are beginning to look old — everyone but him, that is. (He is 45.) He says the reason he looks so good is because I have never nagged him and if I know what's good for me I won't start now.

I don't mind Tom going hunting and fishing and golfing, but I don't like this one-night-a-week-out. He usually is home by midnight. Shall I agree? — Chippewa Falls

Dear Chip: My advice is for you to get a card game, or a bowling group, and have your night out, too. Insist that your husband keep his curfew. Make this the bargaining point. The alternative is a weekly battle and you'll lose every time.

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago I moved out of the house into my own apartment and started to smoke grass. I got into a conversation with my girl friend's mother and was informed that people who smoke grass run the risk of having children who are slow learners, or worse.

This scared me so I quit. It's been 12 days since I have had a joint. I've been talking to many of my friends who are still puffers, trying to get some facts. No one has heard about this slow-learner stuff. When I went back and asked my future mother-in-law to show me something by an authority she said, "I don't think I should have to."

Is smoking grass any more harmful than smoking ordinary cigarettes? Will it have harmful effects on my unborn children? — Concerned About the Future

Dear Concerned: One of the principal reasons I advise against all mind-altering agents is that we do not yet know the effects it may produce over a period of several years. So far there are no definitive findings on the question you have asked — either pro or con. We do know, however, that cigarette smoking women have more frequent miscarriages than women who do not smoke.

NEW YORK (AP) — We live in an age when myths are exploded like strings of firecrackers, unimpaired that before the echo is lost and the debris settles, we will have developed another set.

While a new stereotype of women may be forming, for example, the old one still is remembered and, to some extent, even acted out by those who were brought up in its image.

This is revealed by an investigation of male-female job attitudes and beliefs, made at the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

One conclusion, reported in the ISR Newsletter: "Much of the difference in attitudes and beliefs can be attributed to early childhood socialization which prepares males and females to fulfill different work and family roles as adults.

"But, additional social forces which act on men and women workers later in life, such as educational and professional training or the demands of the job itself, have some influence on job-related attitudes."

For the most part, however, the stereotypes were destroyed by facts. Among the stereotypes:

— "American women work just for pin money." The assumption is that they are supported economically by men. But, say the researchers, the data prove it wrong.

"Two out of every five working women could not be regarded as economically dependent on a male wage earner, be he either a husband or a father. A third of the women in the sample were the sole wage earners...."

— "Women are less concerned than men with getting ahead in their jobs." The researchers found "no difference between men and women in terms of the importance they attached to having a job where the chances for promotion are good."

However, there is a difference, probably the result of conditioning. When asked of their present job, "Approximately when would you like to take on a job at a higher level?" many women said they never wanted to be promoted.

— "Women are more concerned than men with the socio-emotional aspects of their jobs." The researchers found only one basic difference between men and women on this score and, therefore, found the statement essentially correct.

The one difference was that more women than men said that it was very important to them that their coworkers be friendly and helpful. The researchers tended to discount even this difference and explained:

The source of the sex difference was really the fact that women are over-represented in jobs demanding interpersonal relations. "Without friendly and helpful coworkers, their job performance might be impaired."

— "Women are less concerned than men with obtaining self-actualizing work."

This assertion, the researchers said, suggests that women are less involved with their work than are men, viewing their job as "just a job" without meaningful, self-relevant implications. Not so, say the researchers.

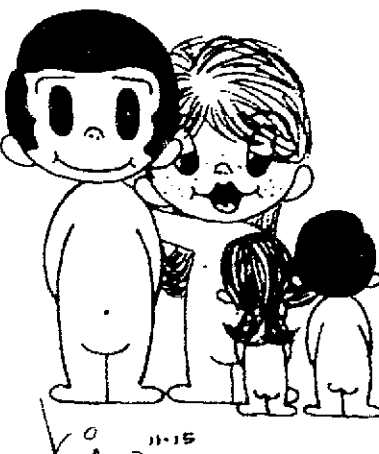

This aspect of the study was made by analyzing male-female attitudes regarding three aspects of jobs: First, having an opportunity to develop special abilities; second, doing interesting work; third, having a chance to do what one does best.

The conclusion: Women are just as concerned as men with self-actualization on the job. To think differently is to be blinded by the myth, by the stereotype. Such assumptions, the researchers suggest, are just straw-women.

Shade a window with bright idea

Window shades are receiving star billing in some of the most successful decorating treatments within many price ranges. That is because nothing else offers such versatility, protection and insulation and choice of colors and patterns, plus such individual niceties as interesting hemshades, trimmings and pulls. And, because the treatment can be lightly-scaled, nothing else will help a small room look larger than it actually is — that's a tremendous plus these days when the baronial-sized house is no longer feasible. As an extra dividend, most shades are sunfast, fire resistant and washable.

Parents and Children

By Arnold Arnold

The facts of adoption

More than 2 million babies and young people below the age of 18 are presently being raised happily and successfully by their adoptive parents. In 1969, the last year for which reasonably accurate figures are available, 171,000 children were adopted. Per cent of these under one year old was 88, 11 per cent were between the ages of 1 and 11, and 1 per cent were between 6 and 11, at the time of their adoption. Yet tens of thousands of others lack permanent homes that can only be provided through adoption.

Sixty-four per cent of all adopted children were born to unmarried mothers who either could not or chose not, to look after them, 52 per cent of these are adopted by other than relatives of the mother. Three-fourths of all adoptions by non-relatives are placed by voluntary or public social agencies.

Children of soldiers

Additionally, 2,080 foreign children were adopted in the U.S. in 1969 through the Inter-Country Adoption Program. Many of these were the illegitimate children U.S. soldiers sired in every part of the globe. All of them represent only a fraction of children for whom we are, or should be, responsible.

The 14,000 black children adopted in 1969 represent only about 10 per cent of those who are available. As in the case of foster care, it costs much more money to keep a child in an institution than to rear him or her in a family home, to say nothing of the social cost of abandonment. Besides, thousands of young couples who have decided not to have children for ecological reasons owe those who are born a chance for a decent life.

It costs money to raise a child — a natural or an adopted one. In 1970 it was estimated that it cost between $23,000 and $25,000 to rear a child from birth to age 18 at low-budget (but above poverty) levels. Actual costs tend to be closer to the $35,000 mark. But institutional care, at about $7,500 per child, per year, comes to $127,500 for raising a child from birth to age 18. A federal subsidy for parents who adopt children would be much more economical. But then, economical management is not the hallmark of legislators and civil servants.

Great satisfaction

You should not consider adopting — or having — a child unless you can afford the average expenditure of from $2,000 to $3,000 per year. The new 1972 family tax law enables you to deduct as much as $400 per month from your taxable income for child care. It will help considerably if you are considering adopting a child. Aside from these purely economic advantages of adoption, great personal and emotional satisfactions await the individual or family that rescues a child from an institution.

There is no substitute for family life. There is no way for an adult to mature without some regular contact with children. A child in your home, whether you are single, married or retired, allows you to reconsider your aims in life, instead of living entirely for the present. An adopted child, especially if you are childless or if your children have grown up and moved away from home, will give you a real stake in the future. It lends purpose to your existence as much as to that of the child who might turn into a public liability, if left in the care of even the most considerate institution.

Divorce rate myth explored

The divorce rate in 1970 was one-and-one-half per cent, maintains Michael Gordon, Ph.D., in contrast to statements leading the public to believe that the divorce rate has skyrocketed.

In his article, "Exploding the High Divorce Rate Myth," in the December issue of Family Circle, Gordon argues with the high divorce statements and discusses changes in law, morals, and equality in and out of marriage.

"Generally, when you hear claims to the effect that divorce rates are reaching the 50 per cent mark," says Dr. Gordon, "this figure has been obtained by dividing the number of divorces in a given year by the number of marriages that take place that year." This does not include people married in previous years nor does it consider that an accurate picture of divorce risk includes everyone who is married.

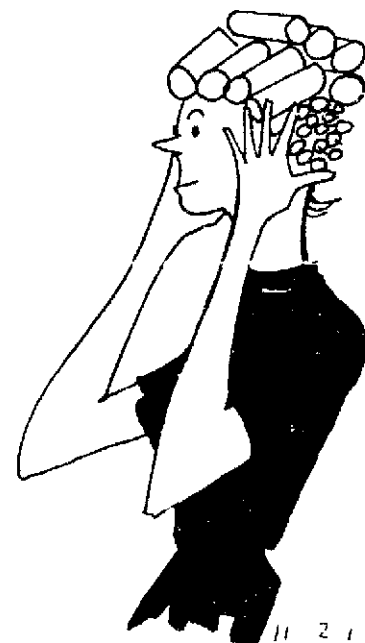

Dr. Gordon attributes the rise in divorces over the past 50 years to the new legal ease of obtaining a divorce and to greater sexual equality between men and women.

"Marriage has become a relationship in which individuals are equals. There are no longer the bonds of economic necessity and survival, but the frail thread of an interpersonal relationship."

Sometimes finesses should be avoided

When you have a suit headed by the K-J, your normal play is to lead the suit from the other hand and then choose whether to play the king or the jack. Sometimes, however, your problem is not which finesse to take but whether to take a finesse at all.

After declarer had won the first trick with dummy's ace of spades, he saw that an immediate diamond finesse would be unsafe. West would take his two diamond tricks and lead a third diamond for East to ruff. East would eventually get the setting trick in clubs.

South prudently drew three rounds of trumps. Now he was tempted to lead a club to dummy in order to try the diamond finesse. This would let the enemy take two clubs and two diamonds.

South saw this danger. After drawing three rounds of trumps, he immediately led a low diamond from his hand.

West played low, and dummy won with the eight. Another diamond lost to West's queen.

Now the contract was safe. If West returned a spade, South could ruff and knock out the ace of diamonds. He could then ruff another spade and discard a club from dummy on his own fourth diamond. This would leave only one club loser in the dummy.

Actually, West led a club through dummy, a better defense. South played low from the dummy, and East won with the queen. East returned a spade, and South ruffed.

Now South forced out the ace of diamonds. He won the club return with dummy's ace, ruffed a spade and cashed a good diamond to get rid of dummy's last club.

It was perfectly safe to give up two diamond tricks, but no other line of play was safe.

Daily question

Partner bids one heart, and the next player bids one spade. You are next, holding: S—8 7 5 3, H—10 6 2, D—6 3, C—K Q 9 2. What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts. You would prefer to have better heart support, but 10-x-x is adequate trump support in a pinch. You have 5 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, just enough for a response to the opening bid.

Blinding tumor to be removed from youngster

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "Let me see a little bit," asked Nazario Aquilero, 14, who has been blind five months because of a brain tumor.

The youngster walked five days to a hospital at Durango, Mexico, with his nearly blind father leading the way from their farm near the village of Tapia. There Nazario was sent to a clinic operated by U.S. volunteer physicians at Tijuana, where a tumor the size of a large chicken egg was found in his brain.

An operation to remove the cancer is scheduled Thursday at University Hospital in San Diego, where research funds are financing Nazario's treatment.

Without it, Dr. John Alksne of the hospital staff said Nazario will die.

A nurse assigned to Nazario apologized to him Monday for her faltering Spanish. The youngster patted her on the arm "You did very well," he said in Spanish. "Thank you."

9-year-old dream of do-it-yourself carpenter shattered by bulldozer

MIAMI (AP) — For the last six months, John Rooney has spent all of his spare time working on a nine-year-old dream — a new home for his wife and two small sons.

The dream was shattered over the weekend when someone driving a bulldozer smashed repeatedly into the partially constructed three bedroom house, ripping up large sections of foundation, floor and plumbing.

"I feel as if somebody close to me had died," said Mrs. Rooney, surveying the wreckage of the house that her 29-year-old iron worker husband "had hoped for and worked for so very long."

"I guess we can manage to start again," Mrs. Rooney said. "But it hurts. Nothing's covered by insurance."

"Wasn't it a bad man that did it," said the Rooney's 4-year-old son David.

Police said they knew of no motive for the vandalism.

Pipe cleaners needed for unusual pedestals

BY CAPPY DICK

Several pipe cleaner pedestals like that in figure one will form an interesting display of postage stamps when placed on your desk. The stamps may be any cancelled domestic or foreign ones that have no special value as collectors' items, but are interesting and colorful in appearance.

To make a pedestal, cut two cardboard panels 2 1/4 inches by 1 1/4 inches in size. Cut a slot in each panel (figure two) so they can be joined together as in figure one. Attached stamps to each side of each panel before interlocking them.

Cut a pipe cleaner in half and glue the halves to the four-way display as in figure one. Twist the cleaners together (figure one) and tape the ends to a disk of cardboard which will serve as the base. This completes the pedestal.

Make as many as you desire, then stand them on your desk.

Instead of gluing the stamps to the cardboard panels stamp hinges may be used. The hinges are small pieces of gummed paper, folded in half. One half adheres to the stamp, the other half to the cardboard. The stamp can be peeled off the hinges without damage.

Send for Cappy Dick's helpful booklet! Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. # 'Lovers' satisfyingly funny at GB

BY DAVID F. WAGNER

Post-Crescent staff writer

GREEN BAY — There's a prevailing opinion among professional theater people that Neil Simon's immensely popular plays are merely collections of one-line jokes not worthy of serious production.

While it's true there are many good humor lines in any Simon comedy, it must not be overlooked that at least some of his vehicles are very well-written efforts which pose considerable challenges to the actors. One of the best examples is "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," ready to enter its second weekend at Green Bay Community Theater. It opened last weekend and resumes tonight through Sunday. Curtain is the unlikely time of 8:17.

Subtle role

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" is a four-character play, and every role is meaty. The focal point is Barney Cashman, who has three unsuccessful assignments. His character development is subtle, an acting problem which Justin Gantenbein overcomes with impressive style.

For the first attempt affair, he is totally uptight. His encounter with Elaine, a cold sex machine ("Yes, I've done this before"), is tense as he worries about disarranging his mother's apartment, site of the trust. As Elaine, Katie Vanden Heuvel is outstanding. She starts a little stiff, but by the time she's on stage 10 minutes, she relaxed and the character of Elaine emerged most believably.

One too late

By the time the second "lover," a scatter-brained would-be actress named Bobbi, arrives, Barney is ready for Elaine. But that's his problem; he's always prepared for the previous woman, and when the new female is totally different, Barney is thrown off stride. Barb Hansen is an excellent Bobbi, as she dashes about the stage, exuding paranoia and insecurity in her schizophrenic manner.

By the time Jeanette, a much older personal friend, comes to the apartment, Barney is relaxed, self-confident and ready to go. But Jeanette is suffering from melancholia, which ends up a depressing experience for old Barney. Darlene Edler projects Jeanette's problems effectively.

The Green Bay production is directed by Bette Cibula, whose workmanlike blocking does not distract from the solid Simon script, but does provide an appropriate pace and a generally satisfying evening.

Jazz concert at Lawrence

"Let's lay one on them," John Harmon tells a group of 32 rehearsing instrumentalists. Then they swing into a program which should "lay one on" the public when the Lawrence University Jazz Ensemble is in concert at 8 p.m. today in the Lawrence Memorial Chapel.

This is the Jazz Ensemble's first concert of the 1972-73 season. All of its concerts are open to the public without charge.

The program will include two numbers arranged or written by students. Freshman Bob Hanisch, Oshkosh, has arranged a piece based on Herbie Hancock's "Tell Me a Bedtime Story" from the Fat Albert album of Bill Cosby's invented character.

Fred Sturm, Oconomowoc, composed a piece entitled "Waves" for the jazz group which Harmon describes as a "balladish mood piece." Sturm, a senior trombone player was instrumental in organizing the original jazz ensemble in the spring of 1971 when it was in the form of a student designed course. The course became part of the regular curriculum the following year under Harmon's direction.

Perhaps the most difficult piece of the evening's presentation will be "Liferaft Earth" by a recent graduate of North Texas State University whose jazz band, one of the finest in the country, is the only other group to perform the work which according to Harmon is "long, exciting and difficult."

Jaundice in newborn isn't so uncommon

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes babies to have yellow jaundice? — D.M.H.

You'll be surprised to learn how many babies have jaundice. Keep in mind that jaundice merely means an increase in yellow coloring in the tissues. It's not a disease — it's a symptom. Whether it is a symptom of anything serious depends on other factors.

Immediately after birth, there can be an excessive breakdown of red blood cells in an infant. The hemoglobin (iron) from these breaking down cells then is incorporated in bile produced in the baby's liver. And excess bile can cause the yellowness known as jaundice.

As a matter of fact, about 70 per cent of babies will have such an increase in bile, which very often is not sufficient to cause yellowing that can be seen, but can be determined by chemical tests.

This is what is called a normal or physiological jaundice and it isn't anything to worry about. It starts about the second day of life and may last from 10 to 14 days.

Jaundice appears in the first 24 hours of life is another matter, and usually is related to "Rh" incompatibility — the mother has Rh-negative blood, with the possible result that a destructive combat develops between incompatible particles in the baby's blood. These days the situation is usually foreseen by blood tests before the baby is born.

Such severe jaundice can cause brain damage if permitted to continue, so treatment must be prompt. Usual method is a blood exchange — the baby's blood is withdrawn while at the same time suitable blood is transfused. More recently, it has been discovered that exposure to blue fluorescent light can be effective in reducing blood bile, shortening the period of jaundice and in some cases even avoiding need for an exchange transfusion.

It also has been shown that giving the baby small amounts of phenobarbital for three to five days after birth, or to the mother for a month prior to delivery, can materially lessen jaundice in the newborn.

There are other causes of jaundice in the newborn — congenital defects in the liver or bile tract, or related chemical disorders, but these are rare.

Chamber Orchestra slated

NEENAH — The Chamber Orchestra of the University of Wisconsin-Madison will perform at 8 p.m. Sunday, in Armstrong High School auditorium here. The music department of the school is sponsoring the concert.

Nancy Becknell, principal horn of the Madison Symphony, will be soloist in the Concerto for Horn No. 4 by Mozart. Also performed will be Mozart's Symphony No. 35 ("Haffner") and Corelli's Concerto Grosso, Opus 6, No. 10.

The chamber orchestra includes thirty of the best players of the highly rated University of Wisconsin Symphony. It is conducted by Istvan Jaray, music director of the Fox Valley and Kenosha Symphonies. The chamber orchestra received high praise for a recent performance before a capacity audience in Madison.

Mrs. Becknell has music degrees from Oberlin College and Northwestern University. She studied horn with Martin Morris, Max Pottag, Philip Farkas, and John Barrows and has played in orchestras under Kousovitzky and Bernstein. Principal horn player of the Madison Symphony for 13 years, she has played solos with that orchestra, Madison Summer Symphony, Saginaw, Mich. Symphony, and Dow Symphony, Midland, Mich. She teaches privately, also part-time at the University of Wisconsin, and plays in the Wisconsin Brass Quintet. During John Barrows' absence last year, she replaced him teaching at the university. Last spring she and her pianist husband, Arthur Becknell, accompanied Ilona Kombrink in a recital for the Tuesday Club in Neenah.

Tickets can be purchased at the concert or from the Armstrong Music Department, Camera and Card Shop in Neenah, Heid Music Co. Appleton, and Mueller-Potter Drug Stores in Oshkosh. The price is $1 for adults and $.50 for students.

Panel urges state aid to local transit systems

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — An emergency state aid program providing reimbursement to mass transit systems for up to two-thirds of operating deficits was recommended Wednesday by Gov. Patrick Lucey's study committee on mass transit.

All schedules, fares and levels of service would remain in effect under the emergency program, and all proposed wage increases would be subject to review by the secretary of transportation.

Funds for the program would come from existing sources, including the state highway fund or the general state fund.

The proposal will be sent within 10 days to Lucey, who is expected to make suggestions on the matter to the next legislature.

John Sweeney of the Duluth Transit Authority, one of five persons who testified before the panel, said he was in favor of state subsidization of local mass transit systems. His firm contracts to operate the Superior bus system.

Rice Lake Mayor John Marcon said he felt more state money was not solution and opposed the use of state funds for bus subsidies. But he suggested that some tax exemptions be made which would help mass transit firms, such as

Parent conferences at Little Chute begin tonight

LITTLE CHUTE — Parent-teacher conferences for children in kindergarten through sixth grade will be held tonight and Friday with no classes on Friday.

Other evening conferences are planned but will be reserved for working parents or scheduling conflicts.

Parents of kindergartners have a special schedule worked out according to their preferences. Other parents will follow a predetermined schedule on Friday, according to classes and last names. Parents may see any unscheduled teacher at their leisure.

In-serving training programs for teachers in the public elementary school have been scheduled Nov. 20 and 27. Students will be dismissed from classes at 2:50 p.m. on these days according to Principal Donald Bangert.

The session will be conducted by four faculty members who attended a LaCrosse workshop on "Individually Guided Motivation in IGE Schools."

Conducting the opening in-service day session will be Mrs. Helen McGrath who will outline the role of the unit leader, teacher and aide in IGE schools and report procedures used. Miss Monica Thomas will talk on progress reports related to IGE schools and the role of student tutors in the classroom.

The second session will open with Edward Tobias talking on grouping patterns and why, functioning of a group and assessments used for grouping patterns. He will use the social studies area as a model.

Bangert will summarize the key to the IGE program and review four IGM concepts including adult-child conferencing, teacher-child conferencing, guiding older students as tutors and guiding children toward self-directed pro-social behavior.

In short, Bangert said, his part of the program will review all other areas previously discussed and explained.

Pope deplores Satan's influence

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said Wednesday whole societies have fallen under the domination of the devil. He said sex and narcotics provide openings for Satan's infiltration of mankind.

Pope Paul spoke of the devil and the "mystery of wickedness" at his weekly public audience before a crowd of 6,000 in the modernistic hall of audiences. "One of the great needs of our time is a defense against that evil which we call the devil," the Pope said.

It was the first time that Pope Paul has devoted an entire speech to discussion of the devil. He spoke with a tense and low voice.

Observers expressed belief it reflected his concern over the spread of Satanic cults in many countries, including the United States. Sources reported the Vatican has recently received fresh reports from its experts on sects practicing devil worship.

Investigators recently found evidence of a black mass — a Satanist rite — and vandal damage at the altar of Turin's cathedral in north Italy, where the Holy Shroud is conserved. The Holy Shroud is revered as the burial linen of Christ in the Church's belief.

"We all are under an obscure domination," the Pope said. "It is by Satan, the prince of this world, the No. 1 enemy."

The Pope deplored the fact that in the revised rite of Baptism less emphasis is put on exorcism, the part in which the priest orders the devil to leave the person to be christened. "I don't know whether this is realistic," the Pope said of the revised baptismal exorcism he himself approved three years ago as part of the reform of church services.

Still, the devil is not forgotten by the Church," Pope Paul said.

"He is the occult enemy who spreads errors and disasters in human history. He is the evil and crafty deceiver who knows how to creep into us."

The Pope expressed regret that modern Church scholars showed little interest in studying Satan's action "on single individuals as well as on communities and entire societies and on events."

He said many would rather seek a supplement for this in "psychoanalytic and psychiatric studies or in spiritualistic experiences, unhappily so widely spread in some countries nowadays."

Spiritualists believe they can contact the dead and receive messages from them.

Pope Paul said that the devil has always been active in the world. But he warned against excesses in identifying Satanic influences in specific cases.

He said: "A great, great deal of caution is required even if the signs of the devil seem sometime to be evident."

Rider wins battle with commuter train

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Six of his peers have decided that Milton Machlin was not guilty of theft of services when he refused to pay his railroad commuter fare last Aug. 25 on grounds of "intolerable" conditions.

Machlin testified Monday during an all-day trial in White Plains City Court that the heat and relative humidity in the car were both over 90 and that there were as many as 40 standees in the aisles.

The defense called six other witnesses to corroborate Machlin's account of inoperative air conditioning and other conditions in the Penn Central Railroad car that sweltering August day.

The only witness called by Penn Central's attorney was John Strilowich, the conductor who had Machlin arrested in White Plains after he refused to pay a $1.65 fare from New York to Brewster.

After deliberating 90 minutes, the jury of six men and two women returned the verdict of acquittal on the theft of services charge.

Machlin, 48, a globe-trotting magazine editor, once described riding the Penn Central as "more hazardous than exploring the territory of the New Guinea head countries."

He said he hoped the case would make people realize that "consumer protests are legal... They do not make one a revolutionary and they may make the railroads think twice."

Epidemic puts Cuban children in hospital

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban radio says 139 children have been treated in a Havana hospital following an epidemic of a disease which attacks membranes surrounding the brain.

Doctors and public health officials emphasized on the Miami-monitored broadcast Monday that the disease, called meningoencephalitis, was appearing in its milder stages. No deaths have been reported.

The health officials said the illness — producing fever, vomiting and recurring headaches — had stricken primarily children in the 5-14 age group.

They said the outbreak was restricted to Havana Province so far.

The disease is caused by poor hygienic conditions.

Weatherman holds deer hunting 'key'

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

While Wisconsin's deer hunters anxiously await the season opening Saturday, it will undoubtedly be the weatherman who holds the key to chances of success.

Checks at Department of Natural Resources headquarters in three areas of the state Wednesday revealed that a "wait and see" attitude was being taken at each spot. In sort of an unusual twist, nights have been around 20 so there is a chance the back roads could be in somewhat better condition by Saturday. The way they have been, it would be nearly impossible for car travel into the out-of-the-way areas so a lot of hunters would be concentrated on the higher, drier ground.

When asked about the deer population in the northern district, Reinke said that game managers were expecting about the same harvest as last season, but this could vary if there is no snow or colder weather before the opening.

"Because of the condition this season, it might be wise for hunters who will be coming north prior to opening day to check with our ranger stations about up-to-date information," Reinke stated.

"The men at the five ranger stations in this district will have a lot of information available to the hunters, including best areas, hunter pressure, last season's results, road conditions and campground facilities," Reinke said. The DNR maintains ranger stations at Lakewood, Laona, Three Lakes, and Eagle River (all on Highway 32) as well as at Florence on Highway 101.

Waupaca area personnel were issuing precautions to hunters to use extreme care when in the woods on opening weekend because it is expected that the wet conditions will reduce the amount of hunting land available to hunters. Many will not attempt or be able to get into swampy areas where they have hunted in the past. Consequently, there is the chance that there be large concentrations of hunters in some places and caution is urged.

The central and west central portions of the state appear to have the highest deer population heading into the 1972 season. The prediction is for a harvest of about 75,000 animals during the 9-day hunt with the bulk of these coming from the central, west central and south central part of the state. Northern and northwestern sections are still feeling the effect of several severe winters in a row which have caused a decline in the deer herd.

Over 400 deer registration stations have been set up around the state and hunters have until 5 p.m. on the day following the close of the season to register their deer.

the only portion of the state where any snow was reported on the ground was in the far south while the northernmost areas all reported no snow.

In the north, the DNR headquarters at both Woodruff and Rhinelander noted that the weather had turned colder the last two days, dipping into the 20s on Monday night and "teens" Tuesday. It was expected that the sub-freezing marks might improve travel conditions on secondary roads and logging trails.

At Waupaca, in the central section of the state where there is always heavy hunting pressure, nights had still not been cold enough to freeze standing water in low areas and, of course, there still was no snow.

"It's a day-to-day situation," said Martin Reinke at the DNR headquarters in Rhinelander. "It has hit only about 25 degrees during the day here for the last two days and the

Mike McCoy improving

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Two years ago, the Packers paid a fancy price for the draft rights to Mike McCoy.

To get them, they dealt three established veterans to the Bears — center Bob Hyland, former all-pro linebacker LeeRoy Caffey and running back Elijah Pitts.

Because there was desperate need for a premium defensive tackle and the monolithic McCoy was the top-rated college player in the nation that year, few eyebrows were raised among the faithful at the time of the trade.

But, as injuries delayed his maturity, some of them began to wonder if the price was right, perhaps because the specter of the Rich Moore fiasco still loomed freshly upon the Green Bay horizon.

Moore, it may be remembered, was first transferred from the defensive line to the offensive line in an effort to find his proper niche, then traded to the New England Patriots for John (Bull) Bramlett.

Any such doubts concerning McCoy's pro football future should be rapidly dissolving in the wake of his recent performance as Bob Brown's partner in the much improved front four. Since recovering from a broken foot, suffered in a pre-season game at Houston, Aug. 19, the ex-Notre Dame strongboy has become increasingly prominent in the Packer pass rush.

Following Sunday's victory over the Bears, Coach Dan Devine took note of McCoy's artistic advances, describing it as "Mike's best game" since his own arrival upon the Green Bay scene.

Defensive Coordinator Dave Hanner, who always has been steadfastly confident of the huge Pennsylvanian's potential, concurs. "In fact," he said, Wednesday, "Mike has played pretty well for the last three weeks."

Predictably, Hanner was quick to add with coachy caution, "He still has to improve, though, and I think he will. He's working at it. All he needs is experience and techniques, more than anything else."

Conceding the pass rush has been "one of Mike's problems," Hanner noted with satisfaction, "The pass rushing he's done lately is the best he's done since he came here."

"To give him credit, he's improved quite a bit in his techniques. But I've always thought he was going to be a good one. I think he's a good tackle now, although he has a lot of improving to do. And he could be a great one."

"He not only has good speed for his size, but he has agility. He's just a good athlete. What he's got to do is to get his techniques down and he's got to use 'em."

Need techniques

"In this league, being big and strong and fast and strong is not enough — you still have to have the techniques. You have to know the type of techniques to use and when to use them."

McCoy, commenting on his technical progress as the Packers continued to give for Sunday's invasion of Houston, observed, "There are a lot of techniques you can use, like the pull, the push, the head slap. The one I like now is the pull technique — I pull 'em by me and jerk 'em down. I like to deliver a head slap along with it, just to keep 'em thinking."

Delighted to be back at defensive tackle after a temporary transfer to offense while he was recuperating from that injury, McCoy is openly enthused about the Packers' preeminence in the NFC's Central Division after playing on a loser for his first two seasons as a pro.

"It's really different this year," he volunteered. "What did we win last year, four games? And six the year before? We've already won more than half as many as we won the last two years."

"It really makes a difference in the attitude. It's exciting to play this year. We're not desperate any more — we're confident now. And I think confidence is the main ingredient in winning."

"It's been just tremendous. Last year the season dragged. But this year it's gone fast."

PACKER PATTERN — Fullback John Brockington, hampered by a hamstring pull, was excused from heavy work as the Packers staged their customarily lengthy Wednesday workout on the South Oneida Street practice field.

Coach Dan Devine assured that Brockington, who jogged lightly around the perimeter of the field, "will be back in there tomorrow."

As was the case last week, the Packers will hold their Saturday practice on the road. They will enplane for Houston at 7:30 a.m. Saturday and workout on the AstroDome's AstroTurf upon arrival.

Patently concerned over the possibility of a letdown against the Oilers, 1-8 in the Central Division of the AFC, Devine reacted tartly to a question along those lines. "If our players are thinking past Houston," he briskly retorted, "we're going to get beat."

Devine praised Bart Starr for his role in preparing rookie Jerry Tagge for his major league debut, which came against the Bears last Sunday and materially assisted in a 23-17 victory.

"Jerry's performance was an example of what a good job Bart has done with the quarterbacks," he said. "He had Jerry well prepared when his chance came."

"Bart, incidentally, has made the adjustment from playing to coaching extremely well. It's been a smooth transition."

Sooners, Penn State in Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oklahoma will return to defend its Sugar Bowl title New Year's Eve night against Penn State, an Eastern power making its first appearance in the Sugar Bowl classic.

The Associated Press learned of the matchup Wednesday, although it cannot be announced officially until Saturday afternoon because of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma is 71 for the season — the loss was to Colorado — with Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma State still ahead.

Sixth-ranked Penn State is 81, having won eight straight since a 28-21 loss to Tennessee in the Nittany Lions' season opener.

Oklahoma's wishbone ran wild in a 40-22 romp over Auburn in last season's Sugar Bowl while Penn State was whipping Texas 30-6 in the Cotton Bowl.

Brewers waive Joe Azcue

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday asked waivers on catcher Joe Azcue, a 12-year major league veteran, for purposes of giving him his unconditional release.

Azcue, 33, batted 125 in 14 games with California and Milwaukee last season. He previously had played for Cincinnati, Kansas City, Cleveland and Boston.

The move reduced the Brewers' roster to 38 players, two under the limit.

Confirmation of the Sugar Bowl match, a source close to behind-the-scenes bowl negotiations told The Associated Press, makes it a virtual certainty that Nebraska will play Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl with Alabama meeting Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Penn State, under Coach Joe Paterno, will be heavily favored in its final two games against Boston College and Pittsburgh.

Smith's 'fund' stirs controversy

BY WILL GRIMSELY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis ace Stan Smith is out of the Army now, one of the few GIs to come out of the service richer than when he went in. About $100,000 richer. Maybe $200,000.

He'll be even richer if he's allowed to keep the remainder of a special fund set up in his name when he donned a private's uniform two years ago. This fund, a source of some controversy, is said to total between $40,000 and $60,000.

The United States' No. 1 tennis player entered the service in December, 1970. He was mustered out Oct. 31 as a Specialist Fourth Class with a monthly salary of $346.80.

In the intervening 24 months, he did little but play tennis—as a representative of the Army's Special Services—and raked in rich prizes, as much as $25,000 per tournament.

His tournament winnings for the two years have amounted to around $250,000. Although GIs technically are forbidden to make extra money while in uniform—except during leave—Smith apparently will get to keep as much of the money as if he were a civilian.

This has been made possible through a deal which the Army's Special Services made with the U.S. Davis Cup captain and through the astute handling of Smith's affairs by his attorney-manager, Donald Dell, ex-Yale, former Davis Cup captain and once the advance man in the presidential campaign of the late Robert Kennedy.

Still, an aura of mystery has built up around the arrangement, largely as the result of a question asked Smith after he won the $15,000 first prize in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y. in 1971.

"Is it true that you have a slush fund and that you'll get all this money when you're out of the service?" Smith was asked.

The 6-foot-4 private from Pasadena, Calif., was shaken momentarily by the question. "I don't know," he replied. "I think all the money goes to the Davis Cup Fund."

Harcourt Woods, chairman of the U.S. Davis Cup committee, queried about the fund this week, said: "We haven't seen a cent of it. As far as I know, it was strictly an arrangement between the Army Special Services and Ed Turville, who was Davis Cup captain at the time."

Reached at the Pentagon, Maj. Richard Lake of the Office of Army Chief of Information, said: "We made an arrangement with the U.S. Davis Cup Committee that Smith could play tennis but that all prize money not won while on leave must go directly to the Davis Cup Fund."

"As far as I know, Smith wasn't even supposed to see the checks."

Turville, a St. Petersburg, Fla., attorney who served as president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association prior to his period as Davis Cup captain, acknowledged the existence of such a fund.

"The deal was that all travel and other expenses incurred by Smith should be paid out of this fund," Turville said. "After Smith won the U.S. Open and played a couple of tournaments on the West Coast, the fund reached about $25,000."

"After taking out for expenses, it got down to around $2,000 and I think that was used for Smith to play earlier this year in Jamaica and Mexico."

Dell, contacted in Rotterdam, Holland, where he was conferring with tennis personalities, said there has been a general misunderstanding about the fund.

"It isn't the Davis Cup Fund at all," Dell said. "It's called the 'Stan Smith Davis Cup Account.' Smith's prize money—except that won while he's on leave—is placed into this fund. Out of this fund comes money for all of his travel and tournament expenses. What people don't realize is that Smith hasn't cost the Army anything and he has saved the USLTA about $40,000. He has paid all of his own Davis Cup expenses for the last two years."

Sharing allowance

During this period, however, Smith was sharing in the generous Davis Cup per diem allowance which reached as much as $200 by the time the team had gained the Challenge Round.

Smith was paid $50 a day for the 10 days in Jamaica, $100 a day for the two weeks in Mexico, $125 a day for the Chilean Series and $150 a day for the Inter-Zone final in Spain and $200 a day for three weeks in Bucharest.

"These payments to all Davis Cup players were necessary because the players from other countries were getting big bonuses," Dell said. "The payments to Smith came out of his special fund. Why should he be treated differently than the other players?"

Dell became incensed at a report that the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association might demand the remainder of the fund.

"Why should the USLTA get it?" Dell asked. "It's Smith's money. He earned it. The Army doesn't want it. I plan to maximize the invoices and use every legitimate expense allowance to see that Stan gets a fair shake. It will all be within the rules, but by the time we finish our expense accounts there won't be any fund for the USLTA to take."

Dell said, as Smith's manager, he had arranged Stan's leaves (30 days a year) to coincide with the big money tournaments. For example, Smith took his leave last year during the Grand Prix finals when he won $40,000, and this year during the winter indoor season when he won four of the five tournaments.

Officials of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association appeared ill at ease when the subject of the special fund was broached.

"I knew this matter would come up—I've been keeping my fingers crossed," said Robert B. Colwell of Seattle, president of the USLTA. "I haven't had anything to do with it. Stan is an awfully nice boy. I just hope he doesn't get bad advice and become a party to any shenanigans."

"Also, what people must remember is that Smith spent 13 weeks playing Davis Cup tennis for the United States, skipping many big money tournaments, and during his Army stretch gave between 50 and 75 clinics free."

Archibald hits 47

Surging Celts sink Suns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics continued on their victory rampage in the National Basketball Association and left the Phoenix Suns wrestling with an identity crisis.

"You didn't see the Phoenix Suns out there, you saw five guys in uniforms," said Phoenix Coach Jerry Colangelo Wednesday night after the Celtics beat his Suns 113-94. "The Celtics are playing basketball the way it should be played."

Six Celtics hit double figures as they recorded their 14th triumph in 15 games with a fast-break offense and stiff defense that protected their lead throughout the contest.

"They simply played super defense in the first half," said Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn. "You've got to keep pressure on them. Everybody made a contribution tonight."

In other NBA games Wednesday night, Kansas City-Omaha defeated Seattle 106-97 and Los Angeles downed Detroit 110-99.

In the American Basketball Association, Memphis whipped San Diego 128-101, New York upended Carolina 112-107 and Dallas outlasted Kentucky 104-99.

Dave Cowens paced the Celtics with 25 points and 19 rebounds while Charlie Scott led all scorers with 33 points for Phoenix. The Suns made a minor threat with a nine-point outburst in the fourth quarter that trimmed the Celtics' lead to 89-79. But Boston surged back with 13 straight points to put it out of reach.

Nate Archibald poured in 47 points as the Kings' triumph marked the first time an NBA club coached by Bob Cousy has been over the .500 mark.

"It's nice to be over .500," said Cousy. "But I'll be happier when we make the playoffs."

Gail Goodrich and Wilt Chamberlain sparked a second-half rally as the Lakers scored their eighth straight victory and their 13th in 14 outings. Goodrich and Chamberlain each had 16 points after Detroit held a 52-51 halftime edge and finished with 24 and 21 points, respectively.

Returning home made the difference for the Nets as they recovered from a six-game losing streak—with all the losses on the road—with a 112-107 victory over the Cougars. George Carter, acquired from Carolina in an off-season trade, scored a personal season high 34 points as the Nets raced to a 63-47 halftime lead and stayed in command the rest of the way.

Lee Davis and George Thompson each posted 32 points as Memphis broke open a tight contest in the second period, outgunning the Conquistadors 33-19 enroute to a 62-42 halftime bulge.

NOTES & NOTIONS

Luck didn't come in quite as big as package last week as in the preceding guessing period, but we still managed a 16-3 record (for 84.2 per cent accuracy). The all-games rate now stands at 74.5 per cent (246-84-12), the highest figure in several frustrating seasons

Packers over Oilers — Motivation should be easy for Dan Devine and associates after what Houston did to Green Bay in their exhibition meeting. Besides, the Oilers don't seem to have the impetus or precision to sidetrack the Bays.

Illinois over Wisconsin — The Illini have a lot of late-season momentum going (80 points in the last two games) and appear to have too much for UW. If Rufus were 100 per cent fit, the Badgers would have a good victory chance.

Bengals over Colts — Time is running out for Cincinnati, and the Bengals should be "ready" this week.

Bills over Patriots — New England may try to win one for ol' Phil (Bengton) their new coach, but he can't run the football while O.J. can.

Cowboys over Eagles — Dallas cannot afford a slip, and won't Sunday.

Vikings over Rams — The "Jekyll and Hyde" Rams are tough to figure from week to week, while Minnesota is back in the groove.

Lions over Saints — The Saints may come marching into Detroit's stadium, but they could be running for their lives before the game is very old, for it isn't likely the Lions have forgotten their loss to Minnesota.

Giants over Cards — St. Louis has been a major disappointment while the Giants have been able to give everyone a battle.

Jets over Dolphins — This upset special is based on two assumptions that Miami may not be able to go through unbeaten and that Joe Namath is capable of another "Super Bowl" type performance on occasion.

Raiders over Broncos — An upset could easily occur here, but we figure Oakland may finally have found a way to stay in first place for more than a week at a time.

Steelers over Browns — That Cleveland club has a way of sneaking up on you. It happened to San Diego Monday and it could happen to the Steelers if they are still mentally celebrating the win over K.C. Pittsburgh, on paper, looks to be the better team.

Chiefs over Chargers — After being strait-jacketed by the Steelers, Kansas City is ready to break loose.

49ers over Bears — Chicago title hopes are about gone, while San Francisco is still in the thick of it.

Redskins over Falcons — Either could win it, but Washington has been far more consistent.

Unser breaks one-lap record

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Unser, veteran Albuquerque, N.M., driver, unofficially broke the Indianapolis Motor Speedway one lap record Wednesday with an average speed of 197.345 miles per hour, which was timed electrically.

Unser set the official record of 196.678 for the 2 1/2-mile track in time trials for the annual 500-mile race last May. He bettered the performance Wednesday in tire tests.

He drove the same Ottenhauser-powered Eagle in which he holds the record for all tracks on the United States Auto Club's big car circuit excepting Milwaukee.

Outmoded laws on drugs and sex

The Citizens Study Committee on Judicial Organization may sound like an innocuous group dealing with the specific workings of the courts and out of the ken of the ordinary Wisconsin resident. But their recommendations for changes in Wisconsin laws say otherwise. And the group as a whole determined that their purpose was not limited to deciding the effect of laws upon case loads in court.

Their recommendation dealing with marijuana is bound to be controversial but as far as knowledge of the weed is concerned, so far it makes sense. The recommendations on various aspects of sexual relations may be even more controversial but they make even more sense. In fact many of Wisconsin's laws on sex are not only completely unenforceable and therefore shouldn't be on the books, they most definitely deal with matters that should be outside the authority of the state.

Specifically the committee proposes that the possession and use of marijuana be completely removed from Wisconsin criminal law and that "crimes against sexual morality" be abolished. As the results of the presidential election indicated, such recommendations may not be according to the opinions of the "mainstream" of the American population. But the very unequal application of the laws as they now stand puts the way they are written in doubt. While legislation is somewhat along the lines of what might be called indirect majority decision in that the terms of office of legislators depend upon their election by the people, judicial decisions are not always the same. Legislators too are supposed to look at the merits of individual legislation and not be swayed by the heat of emotional issues.

There is no complete agreement among medical men about the dangers of using marijuana. But the consensus seems to be now that certainly the casual or occasional smoking of pot is no more detrimental to health than the same type of use of alcoholic beverages. The "fiend" image has long been dispelled. Whether a heavy user of pot goes on to hard drugs is debatable but probably depends upon his own personality and hang-ups just as some social drinkers may become alcoholics.

Cour. decisions more and more are leaning toward an insistence that the privacy of marriage is outside the state's business in such things as the use of contraceptives. This is being extended, perhaps with the "new morality," to anyone's sexual affairs as long as they do not involve minors. It may offend some people but the state simply does not have any right in anyone's bedroom whether the old ideas of what was right and proper are being observed or not. We don't understand enough about homosexuality to punish such a deviation. The absolutes of sex outside of marriage have been discarded.

In both marijuana and sex cases application of the laws has been similar to that during Prohibition. An inordinate amount of time and money is being spent to try to enforce the laws on the one hand and there is a general ignoring of violations on the other. Such a situation, entirely aside from the status of the laws, promotes cynicism and lack of respect for all legislation — and for that matter of legislators.

The committee's recommendations are sound. The legislature should pay attention.

Want ad started Nixon on career

MADISON — Occasionally during the climax of the presidential campaign one of my favorite younger relatives would look away from the tube and remember that I have had some connection with the remote and mysterious world of politics and inquire whether I have known any presidents.

The answer is always equivocal. Provincial reporters know governors, United States senators, sometimes a few cabinet officers, generals and admirals. But the President of the United States is more remote for the journalist in mid-American than a child can readily understand as she uses her rationed TV time.

Yet it is a sign of the mobility of our lives that I can tell her with only slight exaggeration that I have had a couple of cocktails with Richard Nixon during his career in national affairs. Or that Gen. Eisenhower once received me in his convention suite (although he mistook me for a Methodist minister because of the company I was keeping as I eluded the sentries at his door).

Chatted with LBJ

Or that an old friend then on the White House staff escorted me through the White House and toward a chat with Lyndon B. Johnson a few years ago, and that John F. Kennedy once recited long passes from T. S. Elliot and others when I ventured an admiring comment about his facile memory for eloquent quotations.

These are memories that can be matched by any reasonably enterprising journalist in any of the principal states of the country who has worked on what we call the political "beat." Yet it is perhaps proof of the majesty of the presidency in the modern world that they cling to the memory with a tenacity greater than of the impressions made by the near-great and great outside the world of politics that are the common experience of the professional reporters.

I regarded Sen. Robert Taft as a great man of the country before I encountered him in a direct and even intimate way on the campaign trails of Wisconsin. Twenty years ago, like George McGovern, this year, he was winning a primary election victory here that he thought would lead to his party's presidential nomination.

On a leisurely drive in the back seat of his car in southwestern Wisconsin I validated my conviction of his greatness in a fascinating conversation with "Mr. Republican" who was also one of the most shy of the leading politicians I have known.

Long ago, on one of my first look-see visits to Washington as a reporter, it was possible to attend a presidential news conference in the White House with ordinary home state credentials. The degree of accessibility was such that I managed to bring a friend — a non-journalist — as my guest while Franklin D. Roosevelt jostled with the 30 to 40 reporters standing around his famous desk.

The trouble was that I was so apprehensive about being detected in the act of bringing in a lawyer who did not manage even the disguise of a pen and pad that I have quite forgotten what jokes the president told that brought the laughter that echoes even today.

The presidential losers were encountered more frequently. I chatted with Adlai Stevenson on a dozen occasions, always charmed by his distinguished, velvety voice, spent a pleasant interlude in talk with Thomas Dewey on his campaign train shortly before he astonished virtually the pundits by losing the 1948 election, and perhaps an hour all told repeating to Harold Stassen that my forebears were not Norwegians in spite of my surname. A long acquaintance with the redoubtable Hubert Humphrey has been pleasant.

But among the presidents of my reportorial lifetime, I have seen Nixon most frequently, in part through an old friendship of the redoubtable Victor A. Johnson, campaign manager extraordinary. There once was a candid chat in Washington at a party given for the 10th anniversary of the launching of Nixon's political career. I asked about the truth of the story that a classified ad inspired his first candidacy for Congress. It was the precise truth, he averred, whereupon I sent a note to the home office suggesting a promotion peg.

"If you don't like it here, why don't you people go back where you came from!"

Sydney J. Harris

Thoughts at large offered by Harris

If you're reluctant to laugh at a friend, in his presence, you're not as good friends as you imagine.

Cruelty is practiced only by those who have never been taught, or shown, the power of kindness; and so they falsely imagine that strength discloses itself only in harshness.

The best definition of a hypochondriac I've seen recently is "someone who won't let well enough alone."

It's much more difficult to be a politician today than in past centuries; then, you had only to flatter a single King, but now you have to tickle the prejudices of millions of the electorate, which calls for immensely greater dramatic ability.

Unless a "treaty" is enforceable by a third power, it isn't worth the paper it's written on, since no promise is binding when the legal means to punish its violation is lacking.

On the surface, science is engaged in the perpetual task of turning the unknown into the known; at a deeper level, however, it succeeds equally in turning the known into the unknown.

The worse enemies of capitalism are not the radicals who preach against "free enterprise," but the entrepreneurs who subvert the practice of it by forming private alliances of "socialism at the top."

British children have been brought up on good form but lack of affection — which made them too effete to cope with the realities of life; American children have been brought up on affection but lack of good form — which made them too coarse to cope with the subtleties of life.

Only a man devoid of personal vanity is equipped to handle high political office; but only those with excessive vanity ever seek it.

If you have to say to someone, "Can't you take a joke?", that defensive remark is proof enough that you don't know how to make one.

The same person who "Can't understand" children today couldn't understand adults when he was young.

Men have never committed as many bad acts when driven by hunger as when bored by satiety.

It is the paradox of "good judgment" that he who possesses it most relies on it less than those who have poor judgment rely on theirs.

One of the sad ironies of our technological age is that a "successful" father is too often one that the children wish were a "failure" so that they could get to know him better.

Geographic briefs

Ben Franklin, pioneer American printer and journalist, not only had a nose for news, but also a musical ear for news. As a boy he peddled on the street printed copies of a ballad he wrote chronicling America's earliest lighthouse tragedy, the drowning of the keeper of the Boston light and five companions in 1718.

Joys of spending vs. pain of taxing

Mr. Nixon is as sore a winner as he is a loser. So a lot of the things he has been saying about the Federal bureaucracy and the domestic programs read like handwriting on the wall for people in trouble.

But, in fact, there is within the guidelines prescribed by the President for governmental reform a way to avoid harder times for blacks and cities. At least one Cabinet officer, Elliott Richardson of Health, Education and Welfare, is working on a strategy that would meet the President's requirements for reform while preserving adequate domestic policies.

The President's indictment of present domestic policies rests chiefly on the charge that most of Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs in education and health have turned out to be failures. Then he further argues that the Congress has been debauched by a proliferation of narrowly focussed programs which foster the tendency to divorce the joys of spending from the miseries of taxing.

Complaints well founded

While Mr. Nixon might have been more delicate about the way in which he lodged his complaints, all of them seem well-founded. The Brookings Institution in its study of the 1972 budget abundantly documents the weaknesses of the Great Society programs for housing, health, cities and the war on poverty.

The election trumpets forth the reluctance of the majority to spend more for the unfortunate minority. As for Congress, the steadily spiralling budgetary deficits and the growing gap between authorizations and expenditures show the degree to which it has become truly irresponsible.

Nobody knows all this better than Secretary Richardson, the operating officer for most of the most expensive domestic programs. The starting point for his strategy is the need to simplify domestic programs and to lop off those which are not working. He is particularly concerned that, in the interest of effectiveness and cutting overhead costs, choices about how money be spent should be passed from the Federal to the local level.

As a means of simplifying and decentralizing, Richardson favors a device already put forward by the Nixon administration — special revenue-sharing. By that device the multitude of sharply targeted particular grants would be consolidated into a few general grants. Thus in education six special programs (for the poor, the handicapped, vocational schools, state educational departments and areas impacted by Federal actions) would be consolidated into a single bloc grant.

With a number of grants thus consolidated, Congress would be able to make intelligent choices among programs. Local authorities, able to decide what money they wanted to spend within much looser guidelines, would have genuine choices.

Power to states

To be sure, special revenue-sharing has some special weaknesses. In particular, the passage of decision-making power to state authorities tends to leave people in trouble at the mercy of unenlightened officials. But two ways are open, in the Richardson view, to minimize that difficulty.

First, he favors "cashing in" some of the most inefficient and unfairly managed programs. Thus there would be a cash payment to undernourished families instead of food stamps. There would be a cash payment to ill-housed tenants instead of subsidies for local housing authorities. Above all, as I read it, there would be an all-out drive to put across welfare reform.

Secondly, Richardson favors keeping as earmarked Federal responsibilities those programs where the states and localities are manifestly unequipped to do the job. Thus, welfare would become, in an even more pronounced form, a Federal responsibility. So would health insurance. So would what is perhaps the most grievously laggard of all domestic programs, job training.

No doubt the Richardson strategy is not perfect. He will have trouble selling it to the White House and more trouble putting it across with the Congress.

But the approach is right. Instead of wringing their hands, or dreaming dreams of a benign Nixon, serious men should be thinking about strategies that preserve a modicum of decency in the country's attitudes toward those who do not share in the full bounty of American life.

Mill girls top choices for wives

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Nov. 16, 1872.

The Appleton woolen mill employs 150 girls. That would be a good place for a young man to go and select a wife. Girls who work in such places are generally intelligent, industrious and economical. — Black River Falls Banner.

You never spoke a truer word in your life, and young men who will avoid the lazy hang-around-at-home girls, that let their mothers work while they dawdle out a worthless existence, and "shine" up to the factory girls will act wisely.

Potomac fever

Isn't it funny how politicians spend so much time and money gathering intelligence — then they deny that they have any knowledge.

If anybody saw Nixon flying south on a broom October 31, don't worry: It was just a dry run for his Dixie sweep.

It's reported that animals without backbones make up 95 per cent of all the kinds of animals in the world. And that was made before they polled the husbands of feminists.

China has caught the Nixon spirit — they're trying to make things perfectly nuclear.

Arena to honor slain Olympians

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sports facility, with a swimming pool, gymnasium and arena, will be built as a memorial to the 11 Israeli Olympians who were slain in Munich, it was announced Wednesday.

Abe Pollin, president of the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association, told a news conference that a $125 a-plate dinner will be held here Nov. 29 to highlight a fund-raising drive.

The American Friends of the Tel

Aviv University, where the sports facility will be built, hope to raise $2 million, Pollin said. The Israeli government will provide matching funds for the $4 million project.

Lorne Greene, star of the television series "Bonanza," will emcee the dinner, Pollin said.

Other celebrities who will participate in the dinner include: Tom Seaver, New York Mets pitcher; George Allen, Washington Redskins coach, and Dick Schaap, sports broadcaster for NBC.

New London, Waupaca, Ripon loom strong

Ripon, Waupaca and New London are expected to be the prime 1972-3 basketball contenders in the East Central Conference.

The title was won by Ripon last year with a 13-1 record. New London was second with 11-3. Both teams lost considerable talent, but the Bulldogs return three starters.

Berlin has a big team and easily could be the surprise commodity in the ECC, although the Indians have limited experience.

Rick Frazza will have an entirely new look at Hortonville as the Polar Bears were hit heavy by graduation. Winneconne, Weyauwega and Omro appear destined for the second division.

Mike Flanagan lost two stalwarts at Weyauwega, in Randy Faulks and Jeff Gast, and only has lettermen Cary Schmies and Mike Rohde returning.

Winneconne and Omro must improve their records of last season. Omro, 3-11 last year, has its leading scorer — Mark Kratz — and 6-3 Neal Dobberstein and Dave Kratz off the starting unit back. However, the fast start coach Al Knurr was hoping for has failed to materialize in the pre-season and play arch-rival Winneconne on the latter's court Friday. Dan Lenz, a 6-2 sophomore, was the most impressive Foxes player against Appleton Xavier.

No crushing blow

Winneconne graduated several starters but the fact shouldn't be crushing to the Wolves who were only 2-12. Bob Olson is the lone starter back but is joined by sometime-starters Greg Krings and Bill Luce and reserves Bill Messerschmidt, Jim Fawley and Dave Reinders. Fawley and Reinders are both 6-3. Jim Fahley, a 6-3 sophomore, has been a good addition.

Key losses for Hortonville were Kevin Schulz (22.6 average) and John Kreul. Bob Reader averaged 10.3 last year as a sophomore. The Polar Bears will be on the small side and lack experience, but could have an edge going against Weyauwega on the Indians' floor.

Berlin invades Waupaca and New London visits Ripon in two key contests to open the season.

Dave Morley's Berlin team will have awesome size and can go to the bench for more height. His lettermen are 6-0 Dale Williams, 5-11 Bill Coats, 6-2 John Brisky and 6-3 Craig Mittelstaedt. Add 6-3 Floyd Hoppe, 6-3½ Jeff Thomas, 6-4 Ted Van Dellen and 6-4½ Ken Mittels-taedt and most other coaches are envious.

Don Colbert has probably the best scoring big man back in the league in 6-3 Gregg Nelson who averaged 14 points a game for Waupaca. Kelly Taylor is the only other letterman, but several varsity members were on the roster last season.

New London has three starters back from a team that compiled the best record in the school's history. Adie Martin inherits a fairly good team but two gaping holes, too. All-state Dave Teschke (27.2 average) and floor leader Bill Stern, both all-ECC, are gone. Mark Eglund, Tom Foy and Rick Kaepernick (12.1) are the returning starters.

Ripon lost its key people from last season, too, but 6-4 Bob Sather, a regular, and 6-0 junior Joel Floros — the only lettermen — are expected to pace a fine contingent.

Larry Brown needs 5 yds for 1,000

NEW YORK (AP) — "You know," Washington running back Larry Brown said, "whenever anybody comes out like that, that's just like somebody saying he's going to steal your house. You've got to protect it."

Brown was talking about some comments by Jim Garrett, an assistant coach with the New York Giants. After Brown had rushed for an overwhelming 191 yards a few weeks ago against the Giants, Garrett "guaranteed" Brown wouldn't run for 100 the next time the two teams met.

Well, technically, Garrett was correct. Brown rushed for 106 yards, nine of them on a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns that carried the Redskins to a 27-13 victory last Sunday and brought Brown within five yards of the 1,000 mark for the National Football League season.

His 995 yards for the season puts him far ahead of his closest pursuers, according to the NFL individual statistics released today. The runnerup to Brown in the National Conference, John Brockington of Green Bay, has 731 yards and American Conference leader O. J. Simpson of Buffalo has 812.

Hunting Fishing Outlook

The hunting seasons are in high gear with the start of the deer gun season on Saturday and deer hunters should be prepared for high water conditions across the state, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Northern and central marshes contain high water levels and hunters should be sure to take along hip boots and be watchful of inaccessible back roads.

In the north central district deer hunting is up in good numbers and prospects are good depending on the weather. Many whistling swans have been observed migrating south around Wisconsin Rapids and both grouse and bluebird hunting has been fairly good around Wausau.

Northern ducks are showing up in the northwest with cold weather hunters having some success on bluebirds and buffbreeds around Park Falls. A light coating of snow is on the ground and bucks are moving about. A few hardy anglers are catching rainbow trout near Bayfield and steelhead in the Brule River.

In west central Wisconsin, ruffed grouse hunting is good around Lac du Flambeau but duck hunting is slow. Many snowbirds are still in the Lac du Flambeau area and hunters should be careful. Ruffed grouse hunting is very good around Black River Falls and deer prospects look good near Menomonie. Deer hunters going to Menominee and Black River Falls should bring hip boots as water levels are high.

A few coho are biting in the Marquette River. Marquette County is in the Lake Michigan district and a 22 pound coho was taken on a fly at Marquette. A large flock of 14,000 geese still remain in Collins Marsh (Antigo County) offering good waterfowl hunting. Deer hunting prospects look good around Wausau, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, however, both pheasant and duck hunting have been slow.

In the southeast, southern hunting is good but pheasant hunting has been hampered by wet marshes standing on and heavy cover.

Duck hunting has been good at Horicon Marsh in the southern region and the area's census revealed 12,000 Canada geese and 250,000 blue and snow geese in the Horicon area.

LAKE MICHIGAN DISTRICT

Wautoma Area
Deer hunting prospects look good throughout the area. The deer herd is high and a good kill is anticipated. Hunters should remember to take adequate footwear as of swamp and lowlands are extremely wet.

Winnebago County — Pheasant and duck hunting is good.

Outagamie County — Pheasant hunting is still a spring for waders on Lake Winnebago's good deer hunting prospects are good. Quail are fairly good, however, much of the local deer habitat areas are under water and deer have moved out of the area.

Winnebago County — Pheasant and duck hunting is good. Fox Pheasant and Oshkosh Pheasant hunting is fair. Lake Winnebago has some bluebirds but northern ducks have not arrived as yet.

Fond du Lac County — Pheasant and duck hunting is slow. Deer hunting prospects are good.

Marquette County — Nice brown trout and coho salmon are being taken off the Little River. Snowing on the water and roads are making it difficult to have temperatures will bring more favorable hunting conditions.

Oconto County — Swans are full of water and roads in the northern part of the county are muddy.

Shawano County — Some northern and waders are being taken in Shawano Lake.

NORTHERN CENTRAL DISTRICT

Antigo Area
Roads are getting bad following recent rains. Deer are starting to show up in fair numbers as the rutting season is in full swing in the Antigo area. The prospects for the deer season are fairly good depending on the weather. A lot of back areas are going to be inaccessible in a heavy freeze doesn't come. A few people are still interested in partridge hunting and are doing fair. Lots of swans have been seen going south, indicating that the waterfowl migration is almost on an end.

Wisconsin Rapids Area
Deer hunters should be aware of the bad road conditions in the area as access is expected to improve because of the rain. Hunters should have hip boots along for use in wet areas. We are expecting a fairly good hunting season in the Wisconsin Rapids area. Whistling swans have been observed flying south.

Woodruff Area
Very, very wet conditions exist and many of the back areas are going to be inaccessible without a heavy freeze. If freezing weather holds, it will improve the hunter's chances of getting back in. Water levels are high throughout the area. Our prospects for the deer season are approximately the same as last year.

Police and fire

Damage was estimated at $70 to a cigarette vending machine at Coleman Hall, 100 S. Durkee St., late Tuesday or early Wednesday.
Appleton police said the front of the machine was defaced but not entered, and nothing was missing. The machine is owned by Zaug's Vending & Food Service, Inc., 4100 W. Wisconsin Ave.

A sign measuring 11 feet by one foot was reported stolen from the front of the Home Savings & Loan Association building, 320 E. College Ave., between 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.
Police said a bracket holding the sign was bent.

A owner saw valued at $98 was reported missing from an apparent break-in to a garage at 2201 E. Newberry St. during the past week.

Allen L. Mueller, 711 S. Lee St., who rents the garage, told police that entry was gained by prying off a hasp lock.

Three boxes of ceiling tile, two life preservers and a power saw with four blades were reported stolen from the unlocked garage of the Eddie C. Wolff residence, 821 E. Atlantic St., between Tuesday morning and Wednesday afternoon.

Wolff was unable to estimate the total value of the loss, although he placed the cost of the power saw and blades at $100. Wolff told police he is offering a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

Youth wins new trial after serving sentence

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Terry Betts is awaiting trial in La Crosse on a burglary charge for which he has already served a two-year sentence, according to petitions filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

The petitions said Betts pleaded guilty in a La Crosse County court to a burglary charge in March, 1970, and that he received a two-year sentence in the Green Bay Reformatory.

He later attempted to withdraw the guilty plea, but the La Crosse court refused to allow it, the petitions said.

A subsequent appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court for a new trial was granted by the high tribunal, but not before he had served his sentence, according to the petitions.

Betts said he left Wisconsin and found work in Gallup, N.M., but was returned and is now being forced to remain in La Crosse County on signature bond to await the new trial ordered by the Supreme Court.

Attorney Patrick Doyle of La Crosse, who is handling Betts appeal, said he had asked the La Crosse County Court to dismiss the proceeding because his client had already served a sentence for the offense, but the trial judge refused on grounds that "the mandate of the Supreme Court called for a re-trial."

The petitions said Betts is now prevented from returning to employment in New Mexico and earning a living because of an "unnecessary trial."

U.S. District Court Judge James E. Doyle was asked to halt the state court proceedings and allow Betts to return to New Mexico on grounds he should not be punished twice for the same offense.

No hearing date was set.

No leveling off of state, local taxes

Admittedly, on the surface, the evidence of a slow-down in the rate of state-local tax increases seems persuasive.

— This was an election year — a time when new tax hikes are unpopular and when many states do not hold regular legislative sessions.

— Because of the economic expansion and the steady rise in paychecks and profits, state-local tax hikes of past years have been yielding healthy and substantially bigger revenues.

— Federal grants to the states have been rising sharply — grants which states have been using to cancel out the need for new taxation schemes. During the 1972 fiscal year, the federal government made $36.8 billion of revenue sharing grants to states and local governments — $14 billion or 46 per cent above the amounts granted in fiscal 1971.

— The importance and impact of revenue-sharing grants will grow significantly from now on. The estimate for fiscal '73 is $45.7 billion in grants — in contrast to $10.9 billion of grants as recently as fiscal 1965.

'Mild' tax changes

— And although in fiscal '72, our state-local tax bill soared past the $100 billion landmark to a shattering $108 billion — a rise of 15.2 per cent in one year — state legislatures did make only relatively "mild" tax changes compared to previous years. "Only" 14 states had approved laws raising taxes by some $875 million by fall, reports the Tax Foundation in New York. Most of these increases were in the form of higher tax rates on existing excise and business taxes.

— This total of less than $1 billion is only a fraction of the estimated $7 billion of tax measures that state legislators were considering at the start of 1972. It also is in marked contrast to 1971's tax boost of more than $5 billion. Or underlining it another way, this year's tax hikes amounted to less than 2 per cent of total 1971 collections.

This is persuasive. And living in both exurbia and central city as I do, I, as much as any of you, yearn for the evidence to be true.

But in view of the awesome problems facing the states and localities, how can you assume this year's modest leveling off will be the pattern next year or the year after that?

Virtually no state legislature has yet managed to grapple successfully with a towering challenge — the historic court decisions in recent months to the effect that our present property tax system is unfair to school children in poverty areas.

That school decision

The reasoning: The quality of education in our public schools depends to a large degree on the wealth (or lack of it) in an individual school district; this penalizes children in impoverished school districts; local property tax alternatives will include: a uniform state property tax, new sales taxes, more income taxes.

On top of all this, "soak the drivers and the sinners" is increasingly the rule in revenue raising. Gasoline taxes have been boosted in several states to 8 and 9 cents per gallon; tobacco taxes have been upped to as much as 19 cents a pack (New Jersey). The trend here is toward more of the same.

Leveling off? You'd better not believe it.

Cost-cutting through efficiency endorsed by Chamber

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A reduction in spiraling government spending through greater efficiency was called for Wednesday by the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, which formed a committee to develop local action programs aimed at bringing this about.

Most of the 75 business leaders who attended the conference signed a resolution which called upon local governments to limit the increase in their municipal expenditures to the amount available through the expansion of the property tax base and to use any increase in state and federal aids for property tax relief.

The resolution also called upon Gov. Patrick Lucey and the state legislature to limit any increase in state expenditures to the additional funds available through economic growth and federal revenue sharing.

Kenneth Haagensen, executive vice president of the state group, was named to the committee along with Robert Humphrey, executive vice president of the Manitowoc-Two Rivers chamber; Philip Sellinger, director of research and communications for the state chamber, and Jack Gray, legislative lobbyist for the Metropolitan Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

The Wisconsin chamber acted after state Revenue Secretary Edward Wiegner said the state might have to return funds directly to individual taxpayers if property tax relief is to become a reality.

Wiegner said that, while the state's return of taxes to local governments has doubled during the last five years, property taxes have also doubled during that period.

"Where has it all been going?" he asked, and then provided his own answer: "To rapidly mushrooming local expenditures."

Because of this record, Wiegner said, the state will either have to put some controls on local government spending or return property tax relief money directly to the taxpayers.

The revenue secretary said past attempts at property tax relief have been "spectacular failures" because aid has been sent directly through local governments with no obligation or incentive to reduce property taxes.

One desirable reason for an individual property tax refund, he said, would be the state's ability to "fashion an equitable relief program for individuals, farmers and businessmen."

A past president of the Wausau Chamber of Commerce, John Ullrich, said a citizen task force using a "low profile approach" in Wausau has had considerable influence on local government there during the last two years.

Such an approach, "letting local officials feel that they are responsible for changes," could also be successful elsewhere, he said.

The director of the Citizens' Governmental Research Bureau in Milwaukee, Norman Gill, urged community business leaders to lend their technical talents to government and to become candidates for public office.

But he suggested that any conferences held at local levels such as the one held Wednesday by the state group should also include labor leaders so "businessmen would not be talking to themselves" about the achievement of increased government productivity and reduced costs.

The immediate past president of the Public Expenditure Survey of Wisconsin, Joseph Mithus, said public employe wages would "literally swallow up the public sector of our economy" unless greater efforts were made to control them.

Traditional cancer views challenged

BY FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two Baltimore scientists report new evidence they say challenges traditional medical opinion that a person who survives a cancer in one part of his body is especially vulnerable to having a new and entirely independent one in another part.

Researchers Richard F. Morton and Umberto Villa of the University of Maryland School of Medicine reported Wednesday that a followup study of 1,563 consecutive cases of primary — that is, first time — invasive cancer uncovered the development of only 30 new cases.

The report on their study involving patients treated with radiation between the years 1932 and 1970 was presented Wednesday to the centennial convention of the American Public Health Association.

Declaring that the followup was complete for all but 69 patients who were lost and untraceable, they said the 30 new cancers of different organs and of different cell type from the previous cases included malignancies of the breast, lung, stomach, gall bladder, pancreas, colon, rectum, and other organs and tissues.

The over-all rate was then compared with the rate to be expected for first time cancers of those specific sites in the general population for persons in comparable age groups.

Declaring the "expected" number turned out to be 29.2 — virtually the same as the number observed in their own study — the researchers said:

"The results of this study suggest that the incidence of new cancers in an irradiated population of previous cancer patients does not differ from that occurring in the general population."

"This conclusion is certainly contrary to clinical opinion as stated even in contemporary literature (that) the most frequent premonitory sign of cancer is previous cancer of another kind."

"Our study does not substantiate this view and suggests that the risk of new cancer is that of the general population."

The scientists made plain throughout their report that when they talked about "new" or primary cancers they were talking about entirely new and independent malignancies — not cancers that had spread to a new site from a primary cancer elsewhere in the body.

Rules on promotion of prescription drugs failure, claims Nelson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations on the advertisement of prescription drugs have failed to prevent misrepresentation, Sen. Gaylord Nelson said today.

"Approximately $700 million, the major effort in drug advertising and promotion, is being spent on thousands of detail men— itinerant salesmen—who are at this very moment pushing drugs through oral representations which are not monitored by the FDA," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

Nelson said in a speech prepared for a National Council of Churches of Christ hearing on drug advertising ethics that the pharmaceutical industry spent more than $1 billion on advertising and promotion last year and concentrated most of that on the 200,000 physicians who prescribe drugs.

Pilots ponder world strike

Thursday, Nov. 16, 1972

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Neshanic-Menasha, Wis.

A-9

WASHINGTON (AP) — With their lives menaced by hijackers and their command authority challenged by tactics of the FBI, the nation's airline pilots are contemplating a new worldwide protest suspension of air service.

Spokesmen for both the pilots and their airlines welcomed the prospect of negotiations between the United States and Cuba to curb hijacking, but the pilots expressed the view that only a worldwide strike would force all governments to crack down on air piracy.

"I don't think we have any alternative to another worldwide strike," said John J. O'Donnell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association.

The first such demonstration, a 24-hour shutdown last June 19, was only partially effective in the United States because the airlines obtained court orders against it.

This time, O'Donnell told a news conference Wednesday, the airlines have indicated through their industry organization, the Air Transport Association, that they might cooperate in an effective shutdown.

But Stuart G. Tipton, ATA president, denied that the industry had given any such assurance.

O'Donnell said the ALPA board would meet within less than two weeks to consider closing air commerce as a means of inducing governments to take stronger measures against hijacking—such as providing more money for security personnel and equipment, and guarantees of swift punishment for air pirates.

"If it was in my power alone, I would shut down America's air industry until such time as the proper guarantees for safety to passenger and crew were made by the federal government," O'Donnell said.

Earlier, in a letter to President Nixon, O'Donnell urged that the United States take the initiative in trying to negotiate an antihijack accord directly with the Cuban government, because Cuba has been the principal haven for American hijackers.

Fidel Castro's government called over Havana radio Wednesday for immediate talks between the two nations as "the only competent, rapid and effective way to halt the wave of airplane hijackings."

The State Department said the possibility of new negotiations would be explored through the Swiss embassy, which represents U.S. diplomatic interests in Cuba.

Speaking for the U.S. airlines, Tipton praised the Cuban government for its handling of the passengers and crew of the Southern Airways jet hijacked to Havana last Sunday.

The FBI attempt to ground the hijacked jet after it landed at McCoy Field in Orlando, Fla., was criticized anew by Capt. Thomas M. Ashwood, chairman of ALPA's commission on flight security.

Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray brought the hijack victims close to disaster by authorizing agents to shoot out the plane's tires, Ashwood told the convention of The Associated Press Managing Editors in Kansas City.

The crippled DC9 barely lifted off the ground at the extreme end, said O'Donnell who joined in assailing the FBI action.

With 27 passengers, a crew of four and the three hijackers aboard, "It came very close to being a ball of flame at the McCoy airport," O'Donnell said.

The ALPA leader said the plane's pilot, Bill Haas, told him that on three occasions he had almost persuaded the hijackers to release the passengers.

"In the middle of the talks there was a gunshot, and the tires started going flat," O'Donnell said. "Nothing short of a miracle prevented a major disaster. It is beyond comprehension that notification was not given to the pilot-in-command of the FBI's intentions."

O'Donnell said Gray explicitly violated an agreement between the Justice Department and the Transportation Department that no federal officials would intervene in a hijacking without the express approval of the pilot in command.

When the three hijackers attempted to board the plane at Birmingham, Ala., Friday, their actions so closely fit the government-developed hijacker profile, used for passenger screening, that they were asked to step aside for a weapons-detection check.

"The hijackers were selectees under the profile system, but not one of them was properly searched by trained law enforcement personnel," he said.

Nation's top school officials back busing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An organization representing top school officials from the 50 states has given its unqualified support to busing children as "one viable means of attaining quality education."

The busing stand was included in a statement of policy issued Wednesday at the end of a four-day meeting here of an organization of state superintendents of public instruction.

"The Council of Chief State School Officers reaffirms its belief that desegregation carried out with integrity and adequate financial resources provides better educational opportunities for all youth and does not result in a deterioration of the quality of that educational experience," the group said.

"The CCSSO therefore supports the position that busing students regardless of economic status, race or national origin is one viable means of attaining quality education in the nation's schools," the statement continued.

The statement added "that the decision to bus students to provide equality of educational opportunity should appropriately reside at the state and local school levels."

The school chiefs also put top priority on legislation to provide general federal financial aid to states for education. They said the federal government should assume one-third onday education.

Noting that President Nixon has vetoed four appropriations bills for the U.S. Office of Education, the educators called on him to increase federal funding for schools "significantly." They also opposed any administrative action which has the effect of impounding or not expending funds provided by Congress.

The council urged states to develop fiscal reforms which would finance education and at the same time lessen dependence on property taxes.

It'll be back to work for workers at Ford

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers union members at Ford plants will not be getting a four-day Thanksgiving weekend.

In turning down a union request to switch the Dec. 17 paid "bonus holiday" to Nov. 24, Ford said Wednesday that a strong demand for Ford products makes it essential to keep the factories producing at peak performance.

The "bonus holiday" was a product of 1970 contract negotiations.

Prison kissing ban upheld by U.S. judge

MADISON (AP) — A federal judge has refused to stop enforcement of a prison ban on inmates from hugging and kissing their wives in a prison reception room during visiting hours.

Inmates Henry H. Luter Jr. and James E. Stewart, both of whom are black and have white wives, claimed the rule was enforced against them for racial reasons.

Their complaint, which asked for a temporary injunction against Waupun State Prison Warden Raymon Gray and other officials, said they had lost recreational privileges because they had kissed their wives during a visit earlier this year.

U.S. District Court Judge James Doyle said in rejecting their request for an injunction there was "A lack of evidence to show that there was a pattern of discrimination in the enforcement of the prison rule."

Doyle also said Luter and Stewart had not demonstrated a "reasonably good chance of prevailing in the question whether this interest is sufficiently compelling to justify the challenged regulation."

Prison records show Luter, of Milwaukee, is serving a 10 year sentence after being convicted of armed robbery, auto theft and sexual perversion. The records show Stewart, of Madison, is serving a five-year term on a sale of heroin charge.

Radiation standards called dangerously high

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Academy of Sciences panel says current federal radiation exposure standards are so high that they pose a threat of new cancer deaths and genetically-linked diseases.

The 470-page report released Wednesday recommended that the federal government re-examine public exposure to X-rays, nuclear medicines and other man-made sources of radioactivity.

The report, issued by the academy's Advisory Committee on the Biological Effects of Ionizing Radiation, suggested many radiological medical examinations were not needed and urged that medical radiation exposure be reduced significantly.

The report estimated that if the U.S. population were exposed to the 170 millirems per year of radiation now permitted by the Radiation Protection guide, between 1,100 to 27,000 Americans would become afflicted with serious genetically-linked disease.

Another 6,000 Americans could be expected to die from cancer each year—an increase of two per cent over the current cancer-death rate, the report said.

The report offered no new radiation guidelines but said it appears the needs of society could be met "with far lower average exposures ..."

Heart researchers find drug helpful in induced attacks

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Three University of Minnesota research physicians say they have found a drug that protects animal hearts against damage from induced heart attacks.

Drs. Lloyd G. Phillips, William G. Kubicek and Wesley D. Anderson said Wednesday the drug betahistine hydrochloride (BtH) has worked well in experiments on dogs, "but we don't know yet how it would work in a man."

In a typical heart attack, a clot blocks a coronary artery, preventing blood from getting through to nourish part of the heart muscle.

The researchers said BtH apparently causes so-called collateral arteries, which usually carry little blood, to open very wide and carry the blood supply to starving heart muscle.

You won't believe it, but that's his name

WARRENTON, Ore. (AP)—In public school, most of his time was occupied defending his good name — with his fists.

"My nose used to take on a new shape every week."

In the Marine Corps, same thing. "There were some good fights...very lively affairs."

Today, patrons of his seafood restaurant in this Oregon coastal town still find it difficult to stop a giggle when addressing him.

But it doesn't bother him anymore. And through it all he's never considered changing his name.

"Ure A. Pigg is who I am. If I started all over again I would still want to be me — Ure A. Pigg."
